Solons Hit Back As Tar, Feather Idea Is Proposed

State Senator Defies His Foes To Run Him Out Of Feliciana

MORE BILLS TALKED

Tax Reform Commission Members Begin Assembling At Capital

BATON ROUGE, La., May 19.—(AP)—Troubles of two Louisiana law-makers with their constituents, rising to a "tar and feathers" crescendo, was joined tonight in the center-spot of state capital interest by further unfolding of Louisiana tax reform commission "property relief" measures designed for submission to the legislature after it reconvenes Monday night.

While State Senator J. A. Richardson of the West Feliciana-East Feliciana district, and Representative Malcolm Dougherty, East Feliciana, struck back at verbal assailants at a mass meeting at which both were asked to resign and a coat of tar and feathers was suggested for the former, members of the tax reform group returned from their homes to carve out their state budget bill, and other measures.

The commission members began re-assembling in Baton Rouge 48 hours before the other members of the week-end recessed legislature, to complete the remainder of their ad valorem "tax relief" bills, exclusive of the "in lieu" special taxes they will recommend.

In addition to the bill drafting deliberations, Senator W. Scott Heywood, of Jennings, commission vice chairman, formally announced one of the commission "in lieu" taxes would, other members of the commission concurring, be a licensing tax on crude oil imported from other states.

The tax he said he was personally recommending, and which he said he believed other commission members approved, would provide for a reduction of the present Louisiana oil severance tax of from 4 to 11 cents to 3 cents, with application of the same schedule on imported oil.

He estimated the tax would produce $2,315,440 a year net increased revenue to be dedicated to the commission's "property tax relief fund."

Senator A. C. Gardiner, Church Point, of the commission, said it was planned if possible to throw all the commission's measures aside from the tax bills into the mill Monday night.

Among the bills he said it was hoped to finish over Sunday included what he called the commission's "economy program"—the state budget and the levee board consolidation bills.

REMOVAL OF NEGRO THWARTS HUGE MOB

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 19.—(AP)—The timely removal of a young negro accused of attacking a 13-year-old white girl to an unnamed prison today was credited with having prevented a charge upon the county jail here by a mob which at one time numbered around 1,000 persons.

Apparently convinced of officers' statements that the prisoner had been whisked away some 12 hours before, the remnants of a mob which clamored for the negro's life during the night, finally dispersed shortly after 3 a. m. today, and sheriff's deputies said they thought the "trouble is over."

The milling and armed crowd, however, gave up its long vigil only after a group had dashed in automobiles to Gaffney, a town 50 miles away, to find that the negro had not been taken there. When they returned to Greenville, a smaller crowd gathered around the jail, but apparently not knowing where to turn next, finally broke into groups and left.

The whereabouts of the negro prisoner was a secret.

Brady Is Convicted On Criminal Attack Count

George Brady, convicted of attempted criminal assault, was sentenced by Judge David I. Garrett in district court yesterday to serve 15 years in the state penitentiary.

Two youths who pleaded guilty to a charge of participation in the burglary of the Louisiana Stores, Inc., last November, were given sentences of one year each in the state penitentiary. They were Mike Adams and Garland Kennedy, who, after entering the pleas, were given hearings before the jury at the request of defense counsel in the hope of being given suspended sentences.

Yesterday was the final session of the spring term of the court which lasted two weeks. Several cases docketed for trial at the term will go over to a later term.

U. S.-Chestnut Puller? Dillinger Back On Page 1 Imaginary Sherlock 335,000 Dogs, Too Many

By ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd.)

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, says Great Britain will not undertake to preserve China's territorial integrity or her "open door" and will not participate in any action "against Japan or any other power in other parts of the world unless the United States gives its full cooperation."

You ask yourself "When did Uncle Sam volunteer as a world wide policeman and chief chestnut-puller-out, for the British empire?"

MR. DILLINGER or somebody with a face like his, scarred as his face is scarred, returns to the front page, with machine guns, swift "get-away" automobile, gangster retinue, "fearless blonde moll" and all.

On this latest occasion, time Friday afternoon, place, Flint, Michigan, he holds up the Citizens Commercial and

ROOSEVELT CALLS UPON PEOPLE TO AID CRIME FIGHT

Federal Grand Jury Returns Indictment Against Dillinger

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called on all American citizens to marshal support today for the federal government's war on crime.

While the department of justice girded itself with new weapons to wield against criminals, the president said: "I ask citizens, individually and as organized groups, to recognize the facts and meet them with courage and determination."

Public intolerance of the evil-doer, the president asserted, is needed to bolster the nation's drive on interstate crime.

In signing six bills yesterday to strengthen the forces of the department of justice, President Roosevelt signaled the action as "an event of the first importance."

"So far as the federal government is concerned," he said, "there will be no relenting."

But there is one thing more. Law enforcement and gangsters' extermination cannot be made completely effective so long as a substantial part of the public looks with tolerance upon criminals, permits public officers to be corrupted or intimidated by

CITY'S RIVERFRONT RAVAGED BY BLAZE

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 19.—(AP)—A fire, believed incendiary, roared through the riverfront section of the city today destroy a factory, homes, stores and a shipyard filled with valuable private yachts.

It leveled an area a quarter of a mile square and caused damage estimated by insurance underwriters at $900,000.

Four hundred persons were thrown out of work with the destruction of the Fisher Shoe factory and a dozen families were made homeless by the burning of their dwellings.

It was the most destructive blaze in the long history of Newburyport and for two hours it swept onward, uncontrolled. Aid was summoned from a score of surrounding Massachusetts and New Hampshire communities, apparatus coming from as far away as Salem, 26 miles to the south.

Only two casualties were reported. Both were firemen and both were overcome by smoke. Neither was in a serious condition.

Search For Robles Kidnapers Continues

TUCSON, Ariz., May 19.—(AP)—The search for suspects in the kidnaping of six-year-old June Robles continued unabated today in the face of her inability to recognize any of those brought before her as having connection with her abduction.

Authorities continued their investigation of two unnamed men. They were not held but authorities said they could be reached if wanted again.

The case reached a sensational climax Monday when June was imprisoned in a sheet-iron box buried in the desert 9 1-2 miles south of here.

BULGARIAN ARMY TAKES CONTROL OF GOVERNMENT

Soldiers Strike Quickly At Dawn, Establish Military Rule

ARREST OLD CABINET King Boris Acquiesces Promptly To New State Of Affairs

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 19.—Striking swiftly before the sun was up, the Bulgarian army today junked constitutional government and took control of the nation under a military dictatorship established by royal decrees.

Whether King Boris, the 40-year-old monarch who has the reputation of being a fighter, was the sponsor of the coup d'etat, or had it thrust upon him by the army, was not immediately apparent, even to the populace of Sofia.

Whatever his original position, the king acquiesced promptly to the new state of affairs, and signed decrees which dissolved parliament and put the new government, with Kimon Gueorgueff as premier, in power.

Members of the former cabinet were arrested and placed under guard as the soldiers seized the government. Reports that several hundred persons had been arrested were heard on the streets.

Soldiers were in absolute control of the situation, not only here but in other cities throughout the country.

Heavy guards were on duty at all public buildings and in the streets, and most of the populace remained indoors. No disturbances were reported from any section of the nation.

The blow was struck swiftly and effectively before dawn, and in the manner of its execution showed evidence of weeks of planning.

Troops moved speedily from their barracks to all public buildings in Sofia, and took possession of every strategic point without hindrance.

At the same time, garrisons in provincial cities were executing similar movements.

In the time required for brief military march through the streets to previously designated posts of duty the army was in control of the whole nation, from the premiership down to the mayors of villages.

Soldiers went also to the royal palace, and soon King Boris was signing decrees after decree setting up the new form of government. Some 30 documents had received his approval by noon.

KEEPER OF TOLL BRIDGE IS SLAIN

Police Think Arkansan Recognized Bandit And Was Then Shot

TEXARKANA, Ark., May 19.—(AP)—Glenn L. Williams, 35-year-old keeper of the toll bridge over the Red river at Fulton, 13 miles northeast of here, and father of four children, was shot to death today by a gunman whom police theorized Williams had attempted to capture after recognizing him as a desperado.

Discarding robbery as a motive for the shooting, county officers from Hempstead and Miller counties were working on the theory that the man who shot Williams in the mouth with a pistol did so as the keeper reached for his shotgun which was found on the floor of the toll house instead of its usual place. The officers theorized that Williams was shot in an attempt to effect the capture of some widely publicized desperado whom he recognized. No money was taken from the toll house.

The one shot that fatally wounded the keeper awakened L. R. Quinn, another toll collector, who lives in a bridge cottage ten yards from the scene of the shooting. Quinn rushed to his front door, but not in time to catch a glimpse of the killer driving away in his automobile. Instead he saw Williams staggering toward him. The wounded man without speaking fell dead at Quinn's feet.

INVESTIGATION IS ASKED BY HURLEY

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—An investigation to determine whether the department of justice was "attempting to destroy the reputation of all the members of the former administration," was demanded today by Patrick J. Hurley, the Hoover secretary of war.

In a heated session of the senate civil service committee, Hurley said it should be ascertained whether this was being done or whether one of the department's officials—A. V. Dalmryple—is "just an irresponsible falsifier in charge of the wooden pistol section."

Hurley reiterated denials of statements that he participated in a "conspiracy" to keep Republicans in the prohibition service and demanded removal of Dalmryple, former prohibition director and now a special assistant to the attorney general.

Economy In Road Costs

The Ouachita parish police jury is asking the taxpayers of Ouachita parish to go to the polls on June 5th and vote to renew a special tax that has been imposed for years for the maintenance and improvement of roads and bridges. This tax for the last five years has been two mills levied against property, and in line with the economy that is being practiced in all departments of this parish, the police jury is asking for a one and one-half mill tax as a renewal in place of the two mills, thereby saving the taxpayers of this parish at least $25,000.00 annually and by so economizing will still render the same high class service in the maintenance and upkeep of its roads and bridges as has been practiced in the past.

In Ouachita parish, there are at present approximately 500 miles of roads of which 402 miles are maintained by the parish. There are also approximately 8,400 lineal feet of bridging to be maintained.

To maintain these 402 miles of road and 8,400 lineal feet of bridging the parish will have, with one and one-half (1½) mills tax on a $48,000,000.00 assessment, about $70,000.00 annually.

To the average taxpayer, this may look like a rather large sum of money to spend on roads; yet when we divide this sum by the 402 miles of roads, we get $174.00 per mile per year. Taking Sundays and holidays out we have available approximately 300 working days on which road work may be possibly carried on. If we divide this $174.00 by 300, we get a rather conservative result of 58 cents per mile per day for the maintenance of the parish road system.

Any one who is inclined to be excessively critical of the funds spent and work accomplished by the parish highway department, might stop and consider for awhile, what he would do were he charged with the duty of keeping one mile of road in good condition, paying this mile's proportionate share of the cost of any new equipment purchased, paying its share of the gas, oil and repairs of all road equipment, paying the cost of gravel or lumber and hauling charges, also the cost of dragging the road to keep it smooth, opening up side ditches and drainage, cutting weeds, repairing culverts and bridges, re-flooring and painting bridges, taking care of wash-outs and numerous other operations, for all of which he would receive the sum of 58 cents per day. When we stop to realize the amount of work necessary in maintaining a mile of road and the small amount of money available for this maintenance, we are usually forced to the conclusion that we are getting pretty good road service considering the funds available. Also each year there are several miles of road that have to be reconstructed, widened and rebuilt on account of the building up of the rural sections and the constant increase in traffic.

In order to maintain a road properly it should be dragged just as frequently as necessary to keep up with the destructive effects of the traffic. On some roads this may mean every day dragging. On others, once a week, and possibly some of the side roads could be kept smooth and with fairly good drainage by dragging once each month.

Some still argue that the roads should be dragged only after rains. This is an old horse and buggy idea, hanging over from the days of the light traffic. The heavy traffic of today demands maintenance operations, wet or dry, and dragging is the only means whereby gravel or earth roads can be kept smooth. Gravel on a smooth road lasts twice as long as it does on a rough road where the hammering impact of traffic pounds it to pieces, and at the same time destroying the vehicle as well as the road.

Parish road work is a big business and should be and necessarily is handled in a business like manner.

HAMILTON GIVEN LONG SENTENCE

99 Years Attached To 263 He Was Serving At Time Of Escape

DENTON, Texas, May 19.—(AP)—State prosecutors failed again today in their attempt to send Raymond Hamilton to the electric chair, but had the satisfaction of seeing another 99-year sentence added to the total of 263 years in sentences already hanging over the braggart youth for armed robberies and a murder.

Hamilton pleaded guilty in district court here today to robbery of the First National Bank of Lewisville, Denton county, after state's attorneys devoted most of yesterday and today to a futile attempt to obtain a jury willing to assess the death penalty for robbery with firearms.

After questioning 109 veniremen and finding only one juror willing to impose such a heavy punishment, County Attorney Judge Gambill decided there was no chance of getting such a jury in Denton county.

District Judge Ben Boyd recessed court today while lawyers discussed the possible ways to work out the problem. A change of venue was considered but finally the state agreed if Hamilton would plea guilty to robbery, it was a different situation. For those who cared to contemplate it (and there were thousands who did) the spectacle of a United States senator literally rimmed with steel was offered. No defense of an imperial potentate against the aggressions of an outraged people was ever carried forward as thoroughly and effectively as was the case in Baton Rouge last Monday. Senator Huey P. Long, self-styled Louisiana Kingfish, and appropriately dubbed Louisiana Crawfish, treated himself while in Baton Rouge to as many armed bodyguards as a garbage-hunting mutt has fleas.

The senior senator quartered himself on the seventh floor of a capital hotel, at the extreme end of a hall. Approach to his room was had only through a line of steely-eyed armed protectors, whose manifest business it was to kill insistent trespassers if the occasion demanded it. ## Fear-Swept Crawfish Cringes Behind Hedge Of Gunmen At Capital

Review Of First Legislative Week Reveals Amazing Situation

(Special Dispatch from News-Star-World Legislative Bureau)

BATON ROUGE, May 19.—Advertised in advance as a political show of titanic, imperial, mastadonic proportions, the opening of the last biennial session of the present state legislature, on Monday last, was as mild as an outing of girl scouts. All of the elements of melodrama were present and distinguishable, but the actors declined to follow the cues of the prompters and put on a really worth-while performance. The exhibition actually provided was profitless and disappointing. In the halls of the state legislature there was no spectacularism and no fireworks. The spectators who attended the opening clearly felt that they had been cheated.

however, it was a different situation. For those who cared to contemplate it (and there were thousands who did) the spectacle of a United States senator literally rimmed with steel was offered. NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—Leaving behind a statement bitter in tone against "those who profit from traffic in armaments," Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, started back to Europe today to attend the resuming international disarmament conference.

He said a crisis had been reached in two negotiations, and added that comment on the surface the prospects of an agreement at an early date are not encouraging.

"Underneath, however, there is a strong and growing public opinion which is demanding that the efforts for disarmament shall continue until success is achieved," he said.

Mr. Davis reached the liner Aquitania a few minutes before its sailing time, and had no time to amplify his statement.

"I know you don't like statements," he told reporters, "but this one contains everything that you have a right to ask me and everything that I have a right to tell you."

BOB L'FOLLETTE WILL LEAD NEW POLITICAL PARTY

Group To Be Known As 'Progressives' Will Back Roosevelt

VOTE BATTLE SLATED Young Wisconsin Senator Is Up For Re-Election This Year

FOND DU LAC, Wis., May 19.—(AP)—In this commonwealth where the "Wisconsin idea" of politics originated more than thirty years ago Wisconsin Progressives today created a new political party to be led in battle this year by Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., who is up for re-election.

The new organization will be known as "the Progressive party," retaining the label which the late Senator Robert M. La Follette applied to that branch of the Republican party which he headed many years.

With the creation of the Progressive party the La Follette following in Wisconsin will "officially" abandon the Republican column, where many primary elections for years past have found them contesting with regular Republicans for state and national offices.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., will campaign under the new party label as a supporter of President Roosevelt. He so indicated in a speech which he made to the new party conference late today after delegates had gone on record overwhelmingly in favor of breaking away from the Republican party.

In the state campaign, however, the new political alignment which will select its candidates for state offices at a later date, will turn its guns on the Democratic schmedeman administration and Senator La Follette gave his audience the cue when he said:

"The same reactionary interests that dominated the Republican party are now reaching out for control of the Democratic party through the state and congressional elections of 1934."

"They will have their candidates in the primaries, masquerading as supporters of President Roosevelt and hiding under the cloak of his popularity. They have already crept into the machinery of the party in many states. In Wisconsin as elsewhere Democratic office holders have made common cause with utility corporations and other interests which progressives of both parties have fought at Washington."

FOUR ARE KILLED IN BUS ACCIDENT

Blowout Blamed For Tragedy; Big Machine Plunges From Road

CISCO, Texas, May 19.—(AP)—A blowout was blamed for a bus accident today in which two women, a baby and a man were injured fatally when the bus plunged from a railroad overpass and three other persons were injured.

The huge Greyhound bus went out of control just as it reached the top of the quarter-mile-long overpass by which motor traffic crosses the Texas and Pacific railroad three miles west of here. The bus driver, Roy Turnbow of Fort Worth, said the vehicle suddenly failed to respond to its steering apparatus and it veered sharply toward the left side of the overpass.

It ripped through a guard rail of cement posts along the side and dove engine foremost, to the ground 50 feet below.

Mrs. Mary Ann Hilton of Abilene; Mrs. Ethel Boney, 19, wife of a farmer living 10 miles north of Ranger, and Mrs. Boney's two-month-old baby were smashed to death in the wreckage. Mrs. Hilton had boarded the bus at Abilene just a few hours before to visit her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Hoffman, at Eastland.

Davis Returns To Arms Conference

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 19.—(AP)—After serving more than 23 years in the Missouri state prison, Walter Dibley, the slayer of Stanley Ketchel, middleweight boxing champion and one of the outstanding light heavyweights of his time, was paroled today by the governor, Guy B. Park.

Ketchel was shot to death October 15, 1910, at the ranch of Col. R. P. Dickerson near Conway, Ohio, as a result of a quarrel over a woman, Goldie Smith, who represented herself as Dibley's wife.

Dibley, now 46 years old, was foreman at the Dickerson ranch, where Ketchel came to fish and hunt. Dibley testified the fighter attempted to have illegal relations with the Smith woman, who was housekeeper at the ranch.

Ketchel was wounded in the back as he was eating breakfast. Dibley, who claimed self-defense, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The slayer was paroled to B. Ward Mackey of Springfield, Mo.

ERA ANNOUNCES PLANS TO HELP RURAL CITIZENS

Rehabilitation Committee For Louisiana Will Be Named Soon

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—The emergency relief administration announced today that a rural rehabilitation committee will be appointed shortly for Louisiana to administer relief to farmers and farm workers.

The committee will include J. G. Lee, Jr., dean of the agricultural school, Louisiana State university; J. L. Fletcher, head of the agriculture department, Southwestern Louisiana institute; H. C. Nixon, head of the history and political science departments, Tulane university, and H. J. Early, Louisiana relief director.

The committee's duties will be advisory and it will be a sub-committee of the state advisory committee. Other members will be added if necessary.

A director of rural rehabilitation work for the state will be appointed also, requirements being that he be a graduate of a recognized agriculture college, have had practical experience, possess administrative and executive ability, and be free from political entanglements.

As a sub-committee to the local ERA advisory committee, there will be a group in each parish composed of the home demonstration agent, head of the parish health unit, the parish superintendent of schools, the ERA parish administrator, and chairman of the local ERA advisory committee.

Most Disastrous Blaze Since 1871 Wipes Out 12 Square Blocks

STARTED BY CIGARET

Conflagration Rages More Than Four Hours In Packing District

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP)—Chicago's most disastrous fire since the city-destroying holocaust of 1871 tonight wiped out 12 square blocks of Packingtown property and adjacent area with an estimated loss of $10,000,000.

The conflagration, starting as did the historic fire of '71, in the stockyards area, raged uncontrolled for four and one-half hours.

Not until 7:30 p. m. (central standard time) did Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan, directing forces of 2,000 firemen, declare that the blaze was under control.

Every available piece of fire fighting equipment in the city was thrown into the melee. Firemen off duty and on vacation were hurriedly summoned to the fight. Three hundred policemen commanded by 25 captains and under the supervision of Police Commissioner James Allman, marshaled the huge crowds of curious who flocked to the area out of the fire fighters' way, and aided in the actual work of the fire fighters.

Despite its wide sweep, the blaze did not attack any of the major packing companies' plants. They were located in a westerly direction from the flames which started near the western limits of the mile square yards, apparently from a carelessly tossed cigarette.

No deaths were reported but three persons were reported missing. Officers and physicians carried through the heavy pall of smoke and embers, 25 seriously injured firemen and spectators. They were taken to hospitals as were a score of others who had been stifled by the oppressive heat and fumes. Three of the casualties were in a critical condition.

At least 1,200 persons were rendered homeless.

A score of famous landmarks in Packingtown—seat of the world's greatest meat-packing industry—and dozens of cottages, shops, stores and office buildings were attacked or demolished by the flames that swept the heart of the yards and on across Halsted street into a residential and commercial neighborhood.

Hundreds of cattle, sheep and hogs, trapped by the scorching wave, perished.

82 TO GRADUATE IN WEST CARROLL

Seniors Are Named, Programs Announced For Five High Schools

OAK GROVE, La., May 19.—(Special)—Approximately 82 young men and women are candidates for graduation from the five high schools of West Carroll this session, the final ceremonies for which are scheduled next Thursday evening.

Baccalaureate services, preceding the graduation programs by several days, will be conducted at all of the schools Sunday, some to be in the morning and others in the evening.

Senior plays, banquets, class programs and other such commencement activities are now coming to a close.

Interesting, valuable and inspirational programs have been arranged for all of the baccalaureate and commencement exercises, which will be held in the auditoriums of the various schools.

Programs for graduation night this year are unique and different in arrangement than heretofore, chiefly carrying out phases of the New Deal. In four of the schools, Pioneer, Forest, Oak Grove and Kilbourne, the students will conduct the programs entirely. Only at Epps will there be a speaker for the occasion other than members of the class and faculty.

All of the schools, however, have obtained prominent ministers for baccalaureate addresses.

To deliver sermons at the religious services Sunday are: Pioneer, Rev. B. E. Midyett, pastor of the Pioneer church of the Methodist church; Epps, Rev. Midyett; Kilbourne, Rev. J. A. O. Russell of Kilbourne; Oak Grove, Dr. A. M. Shaw, pastor of the Oak Grove Methodist church, and Forest, Rev. C. T. Almand, pastor of the Delhi Baptist church.

Baccalaureate programs that have been announced in detail follow:

Pioneer, Sunday Morning—Song, "Gloria Patri," by a choir of former graduates; processional; song, "Stand Up for Jesus," by the choir and congregation; invocation; song, "The Awakening Chorus," by the choir; scripture reading; song, "Star of the East," by Mrs. W. H. Cotner, Miss Georgia Payne Durham and Principal H. M. Thomas; sermon, by Rev. Midyett; doxology, and benediction.

Kilbourne, Sunday Morning—Hymn, "Come, Thou Almighty King," by the choir; processional; invocation, Rev. V. W. Fairchild; hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," by the congregation; scripture reading; announcements; anthem, choir; sermon, by Rev. Russell; hymn, "Day Is Dying in the West," congregational; benediction; recessional.

Oak Grove, Sunday Morning—(Program not yet announced).

Epps, Sunday Evening—(Program details not yet announced).

Forest, Sunday Morning—(Program details not yet announced).

Supt. of Parish Schools O. E. Huey will be principal commencement night speaker at Epps.

Commencement programs have been announced as follows:

Forest, Thursday Evening—The New Deal in Education; processional; song, junior class to seniors; salutatory, Evelyn Crowe; valedictory, Rufus Lockard; "Roosevelt on Education," George Vining; "NRA Codes," Mae Dee Ward; "The Initials of the Age," Floy Bonner; "Federal Aid: Six Proposed Steps," Sybil Flournoy; "FERA Funds for Education," Woodrow May; "New Government Measures," Leotis Wooten; "Public Works for Public Schools," Edgar Edmondson; "Recovery Program News," Helen Edmondson; "The CWA and the School," S. J. Edmondson; "The Program in Action," Joseph Bonner; "The Results of the NRA," Oran Bass; song, senior class, and recessional.

Epps, Thursday Evening—Processional; presentation of class book, Susie Lee Rusk; response, Bryant Gordon; class song, "The Civil Works Administration," Alloyse Wall; "The Civilian Conservation Corps," W. L. Tanner; "The Public Works Administration," Helen Hillman; address, Supt. Huey; presentation of diplomas, certificates and scholarships, Dr. B. L. Bailey.

Pioneer, Thursday Evening—Processional; chorus; class history, by Lovia Mae Owens Moseley; class prophecy, Arby Coody; piano solo, LaFerne Fallin; valedictory address, "A General Survey of the NRA," by Julia Fae Holstead; salutatory address, "Education and the NRA," by John Robertson Oldham; address, "President Roosevelt's Program," by Irma Roberts; class song, presentation of diplomas.

Kilbourne, Thursday Evening—Program details not yet announced.

Following are the candidates for diplomas, listed by schools:

Oak Grove—Hulon Riche, valedictorian; Thelma Butler, salutatorian; Ralph Crowe, president and third ranking senior; Harvey Richey, fourth; Robert Lee, fifth; Monroe Bonner, John Briggs, Ray Byargeon, Wayne Bagwell, Willie Calhoun, Addie Lee Doshier, Della Fowler, Harry Griffith, Lois Howell, Alton Johnson, Mabel Johnson, George H. ## Colvert Will Occupy Baptist Pulpit Today

In the absence of Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, who is attending the Southern Baptist convention at Fort Worth, Texas, C. C. Colvert, president of Ouachita parish junior college, will occupy the pulpit and preach the sermon at the church's morning service today.

There will be no evening sermon, the time being given over to a special musical program, including singing by the choir, several solos, and numbers by a trio.

Breitenmoser's Mass Will Be Heard Sunday At Legion Home In Military Ceremony

Will Be Rendered By 15 Voices Of St. Matthew's Choir

The song of reverence that rose from the heart of Ludwig Breitenmoser in 1895 when he wrote the majestic music for his "Missa Pia" will again be heard Sunday when the Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion conducts a military mass to honor soldiers who have passed on. Breitenmoser, teacher and composer, is still remembered in Monroe by those who attended the old Jefferson college at Convent, La. Among them are Philip Bernhardt, Dilman Bernhardt, Armand Breard, and the composer's youngest son, Don Breitenmoser.

Born in Geneva, Switzerland, the elder Breitenmoser studied with some of the old music masters of his native city and later continued his musical education in Berlin, although still of a tender age.

When he was 16 years old he came to the United States and shortly afterward became the organist and choir director at the Catholic church at Napoleonville, La. He also had charge of the parochial school. It was at Napoleonville that he wrote the "Missa Pia" and soon afterward it was published and received praise from such high authorities as the Most Rev. Archbishop Janssens of New Orleans and Monsieur Gerard De Swert, director of the French Opera at New Orleans.

After leaving Napoleonville, Breitenmoser became the organist at the Jesuit church in New Orleans and later served in the same capacity in the Church of the Holy Name and several other churches in the Crescent City. He also was the organist, at various times, for the Tudor theater at New Orleans and the Saenger theater at Pensacola, Fla.

Some years afterward he accepted a place on the faculty of Jefferson college, where he taught music including violin, organ, piano, voice, as well as the reed and brass instruments. He also was in charge of the foreign language department, being able to speak seven tongues fluently. Still later he taught in St. Charles college at Grand Coteau, La.

He spent the last years of his life in New Orleans, where he died in 1928.

Breitenmoser composed two masses, the "Missa Pia" and the "Ora Supplex." The latter has never been published but the manuscript is in the possession of Don Breitenmoser.

The "Missa Pia" is now in its second edition. Like all Catholic masses its words are in Latin. The second movement of the composition was performed here during "National Music week" recently at a joint performance of the various church choirs of the city. It was first sung in Monroe last Easter Sunday.

The mass consists of six movements, "The Kyrie," "The Credo," "The Gloria," "The Sanctus," "The Benedictus" and "The Agnus Dei." Originally written for a mixed choir, it has been transcribed for male voices by Philip Bernhardt for the St. Matthew's church choir, which consists of only male voices.

The St. Matthew's choir, which is composed of 15 voices, is directed by Mr. Bernhardt, and it is this organization which will render the mass at the American Legion ceremony. The Rev. Father Grenillion, assistant pastor of St. Matthew's church, is the assistant director and Don Breitenmoser is the organist.

Don Breitenmoser is in possession of a letter which was written to his father by the Rev. Father R. H. Smith, provincial of the Society of Mary, to which the "Missa Pia" was dedicated. Father Smith was president of Jefferson college at the time. The letter was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Breitenmoser: I appreciate the feeling of cordial friendship which prompted your request to be allowed to dedicate your Missa Pia to the Society of Mary. From the high praises given it by the very competent authorities to whom you submitted the manuscript, as well as from personal inspection, I am satisfied that your mass is in every way deserving of the name you have given it, and that it is a valuable addition to the number of masses which are melodious, edifying, easily rendered and in perfect harmony with the spirit of the 'Motu Proprio.' I consider it, therefore, an honor you are conferring on the Society of Mary by this dedication, which I am more than pleased to accept and for which I extend to you sincere thanks.

"With best wishes for a wide circulation for your Missa Pia, I am very sincerely yours,

"R. H. SMITH, S.M. Prov."

JONESBORO, La., May 19.—(Special)—Mrs. Sallie Brown, one of Jackson parish's pioneer citizens, died at her home at Ansley this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock following a lengthy illness.

She is survived by eight children, I. J. Allen, ward one police juror; C. Y. Allen, Ruston; W. H. Allen, Eunice; Mrs. P. R. Lampkin, Clay; Mrs. G. A. Edmondson, Clay; Mrs. C. W. King, Jonesboro; Mrs. Henry Carr, Quitman; Mrs. Cleve Anderson, Quitman; 67 grandchildren and 48 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Methodist church at Clay, with Rev. A. J. Boltz of Ruston officiating. He will be assisted by Rev. John S. Henley of Jonesboro and Rev. I. L. Yager of Monroe. Mrs. Brown's grandsons will act as pallbearers.

FLOWER SHOW IS HELD
FERRIDAY, La., May 19.—(Special)—The annual spring flower show of the Ferriday Woman's club was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. J. Hodges, with Mrs. S. H. Henderson and Mrs. Sam Lyon as co-hostesses. Mrs. N. L. Sebastian delivered a talk on "How to Judge a Flower Show." The display of flowers was large and the meeting was well attended. It was the final meeting of the year for the club.

Real Estate Transfers

Three planting easement contracts between W. J. Sherrouse, Sherrouse Realty company, Inc., and Parker Realty company, and the Louisiana highway commission, were filed yesterday at the office of the clerk of court in the parish courthouse.

The contracts cover three plots of ground on the Dixie-Overland highway right-of-way, totaling approximately eight acres of land. According to the provisions of the contracts, the highway commission is to have free and uninterrupted use of the land for the purpose of planting, maintaining and beautifying the highway right-of-way. If the commission fails to carry out the beautifying work within two years the contracts will be cancelled.

The tracts affected are north of the highway, between Bayou DeSiard and the road and near the Edgewater Garden Country club road.

LEGION MEETING IS SLATED TODAY

Prominent Members To Attend Conference At Hotel Virginia

More than 150 Legionnaires are expected to attend the Legion conference to be held this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, in the Cameo room of Hotel Virginia, J. A. McClain, commander of Barkdull Faulk post, said Saturday.

Among the prominent Legionnaires scheduled to be in attendance are L. L. Jackson of Clarks, district commander, who will preside; L. J. Fox, Ruston, state commander; Roland Cozart, New Orleans, state adjutant; Leon Dulfere, New Orleans, state service officer; Gray A. Mann, New Orleans, assistant state service officer; Sam Jones, Lake Charles, national executive committee member; Bruce Baird, New Orleans, department membership chairman; Phil Charlet, New Orleans, state NRA administrator, and all post commanders of the fifth district.

This is expected to be the most important Legion meeting to be held in Monroe for a number of months. A number of matters of importance to Legionnaires will be taken up for discussion.

'Renovize' Drive Will Be Talked At Meeting

Further steps toward launching a "renovize" drive in Monroe, similar to that now being successfully conducted in Shreveport, are expected to be taken at a meeting Tuesday night of lumber dealers, furniture store representatives, building supply house representatives and others. The purpose of the campaign will be to encourage interior and exterior home improvement, including the purchase of additional furniture.

Engineering facts prove it. Experience in building nearly ten million cars confirms it. And the record of over 3,000,000 Chevrolet Six owners removes any shadow of doubt about it: The only way to get real economy in a low-priced car is to insist on SIX cylinders and OVERHEAD valves.

SIX cylinders—no more!—because extra cylinders mean extra cost for gas, oil, upkeep and parts. OVERHEAD valves—nothing else!—for the same good reason that airplanes use them. And speedboats. And racing cars. They get the MOST power out of the LEAST gas. That's why overhead valves are the choice of leaders—and champions.

LONG FOE FLAYS ALLEN ELLENDER

Monroe Man Says Speaker Uses 'Potatoes' For Political Aims

Members of the Louisiana legislature are hearing from the "folks back home" about the traditional sack of potatoes, which Huey P. Long, when governor, intimated was all that was necessary to influence legislators to support his measures.

In line with the revival of the tradition, D. M. Doughty, an ardent anti-Long worker of Monroe, on Saturday "accused" Speaker Allen J. Ellender, famous as a potato grower, of using his product for political purposes. The "accusation" occurs in a letter written to Representative Rupert Peyton, of Caldo parish, one of the anti-Long leaders in the house. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Peyton:

"The people want to congratulate you and your friends on the bills you are introducing to prevent shake down of employees for political campaigns and the use of the vast army of employees and state-owned trucks, gasoline, etc., for distributing political propaganda, etc., and other bills like segregation of school funds, etc.

"The people want you to get up a bill to prevent the speaker of the house from raising potatoes for Huey Long to buy up the representatives.

"The press some few days ago stated that Speaker Ellender was the champion potato raiser and we see now that he raises potatoes for Huey to give to fellows like Edwards. It sure was looking a long ways ahead for Ellender to raise a big crop of these high-priced potatoes just when the people wanted to put a new speaker in his place.

"It is unfair competition for administration fellows like Ellender to raise these legislature potatoes because they get so much fertilizer around the capitol like Allen's knock-out message.

"Please do what you can about this.

"Very truly yours,
"D. M. DOUGHTY.

"P.S. Did you notice that Allen said he saved the people $25,000.00 because he didn't use all of the $200,000.00 for sweeping out the capitol and polishing the bronze and brass doors. If you fellows had appropriated $2,000.00 to keep up the capitol, Allen and his disciples would have saved the dear little taxpayer $1,825,000.00. The way to save us taxpayers money is to keep on raising the appropriations and we will soon have Baton Rouge wallowing in savings."

National Cotton Week Is Celebrated At Tallulah

TALLULAH, La., May 19.—(Special)—Tallulah's second annual cotton festival celebrating National Cotton week was held in the Book club building here with P. O. Benjamin reigning as king and Miss Patricia Gilpin as queen.

The event, which is sponsored by the woman's auxiliary of the Episcopal church, consisted of a plantation scene presided over by Mrs. W. J. Ward as a "black mammy," a style revue with models displaying cotton costumes representing merchants in Tallulah and Vicksburg and a dance recital by the pupils of Miss Marianne Ward. Miss Gilpin was chosen queen from the models by secret ballot from the large audience.

The baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of the Tallulah high school will be delivered by Rev. C. Karlos Smith, of the Tallulah Methodist church, in the high school auditorium here Sunday morning.

The May meeting of the Tallulah Parent-Teacher association was held in the high school auditorium here Thursday afternoon with Mrs. A. T. Palmer presiding. Mrs. H. B. Day made a talk on "Safety as Related to the Home."

BUREAU OFFICER ARRESTED HERE

Lodging Superintendent Charged With Assault And Maiming

A warrant charging Lee Sanders, lodging superintendent at the government transient bureau at 300 Plum street, with assault and maiming had been sworn out Saturday by Harry C. Langdon. Langdon alleged that on account of an attack made upon him by Sanders he suffered the loss of his right arm.

According to information received by the district attorney's office, Langdon's arm was badly cut during a fight. He suffered a gas bacillus infection and in order to save his life it was necessary to remove the arm a short distance below the elbow, it was said. The fight occurred on April 11.

Officers said officials at the transient bureau had received complaints against Langdon, who was occupying a room in a private residence rented by the transient bureau. When Sanders went to the residence to investigate the report he and Langdon were said to have engaged in an argument which resulted in a fight.

At the time Langdon received the injury he was standing on the ground at the side of a Chevrolet sedan occupied by Sanders. During an exchange of passes at each other by the men, the glass in the door which was partly down, was broken. Langdon charged that Sanders caught his arm and jerked it down against the

Corresponding Secretary Of Alabama Group Also Makes Speech

Among visitors who attended a special meeting of the W. C. T. U. of West Monroe Friday afternoon at the West Monroe Methodist church were Rev. J. J. Douglas, pastor of the Nazarene church of Monroe, and Mrs. Mary Black of Decatur, Ala., corresponding secretary of the Alabama W. C. T. U. Devotional was led by Mrs. E. N. Hardin.

An address which the audience appeared to appreciate was delivered by Rev. Douglas on the subject, "The Love of Money Is the Root of All Evil." The minister urged "starting at the bottom" in an educational crusade for higher standards and the building of public sentiment against intoxicating liquor. He said he would be glad to lend his support to the West Monroe organization. At one time Rev. Douglas was engaged in prohibition work in the Rio Grande valley while stationed at McAllen, Texas.

Mrs. Black urged the use of the radio in an educational campaign and, following her talk a committee, composed of Mrs. J. R. Henry and Mrs. J. T. Hill, was appointed to make arrangements for broadcasts.

Announcement was made that Miss Avonia Gerald was winner of first prize in the essay contest sponsored in Ouachita parish high school by the W. C. T. U. Miss Gerald is a

Two-Tailed Lizard Is Captured In Caldwell

Model Airplane Club Will Be Formed Here

A two-tailed lizard was brought to the office of the News-Star and World Saturday, after being captured by A. J. Whitlock, living in ward five in Caldwell parish. The lizard was fairly large, brown on top and green underneath.

Apparently the lizard had only one tail in the beginning and this was like any other lizard's tail. In some way the tail was broken about three-quarters of an inch from the end. The end of the tail turned to one side from the point at which it was broken, but remained alive, while a new tail sprouted out from the injured place. The new tail grew until it extended about an inch from the break.

For the purpose of forming a model airplane club, a meeting of boys who have had experience in making models and those interested in the craft, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Monroe recreation department office in the city hall.

The club will be divided into two groups, one of boys experienced in model-making and the other of those who wish to learn the art.

Honor Students Named At Marion High School

Local Workers Employed On Grayson School Job

Several skilled workmen from Monroe have been given employment recently in the construction of a school building at Grayson, in Caldwell parish, it was stated Saturday. The building is being erected to replace one destroyed by fire last year, after it had been ignited by a 15-year-old lad, who said he set the building on fire because he did not want to attend school.

Construction of the new school, a CWA project, was started last fall. Local labor was used so far as possible, but a sufficient number of skilled laborers of certain classes could not be obtained in that vicinity, it was stated, and the district office of the national re-employment service, located at Monroe, was called upon to furnish the needed men.

BONE THREATENS LIFE OF OFFICER

Escaped Convict Was Held In Jail Here Several Years Ago

Luther C. Bone, escaped convict from the Louisiana state penitentiary, who threatened the life of J. L. Hudson, police officer, at El Dorado, Ark., spent a number of weeks in the Ouachita parish jail and subsequently was sent to Angola prison farm to serve sentences totaling 23 to 32 years, records at the sheriff's office here show. Bone has a criminal record dating back to 1925 and is a fugitive from the Texas penitentiary, as well as from the Louisiana prison.

The El Dorado officer had been instrumental on two occasions in sending Bone to the penitentiary, according to a news dispatch from that place. Hudson and other officers were searching in a railroad yard for a negro Thursday night when Hudson's attention was drawn to two white men. When he called them to him for questioning, one of them suddenly drew a revolver and snapped out, "Yes, you're the one I've been looking for."

After threatening to blow the officer "in two," the man apparently changed his mind and ordered Hudson to "beat it," telling him he would kill him if he offered any resistance. After walking about 100 feet, Hudson looked around and saw that the man had sped away in the police patrol car. Hudson said he recognized the man as Bone, whom he had helped in sending to the penitentiary on two occasions.

Bone was first taken into custody here by members of the state highway police force, being arrested with W. R. Roberson as a suspect in the slugging of Warren Breard at the Breard grocery on Washington and Fourth streets, during a holdup. He was not identified in this holdup, but was given sentences ranging from 28 to 32 years from Bienville parish, after being held in jail here for some time, and Roberson received a similar sentence.

The finger-print record in the sheriff's office here shows that Bone was received at the state penitentiary at Little Rock, Ark., July 28, 1925, to serve one year for grand larceny. On August 18, 1927, he was received at the Texas penitentiary at Huntsville to serve six years for burglary. He escaped July 27, 1928, and the Texas prison was notified of his apprehension here February 13, 1930.

In the meantime, Bone had been sent back to the Arkansas penitentiary from Union county to serve three years for robbery. He was paroled in November, 1929, his arrest here following a few months later. He was received at Louisiana state penitentiary on May 6, 1930. The date of his escape from that place was not known.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

CHAPTER XXXI

The morning that Billings decided to visit Morro Castle was the same one on which Marcia Treadway said to Estelle, "I suppose I really ought to see the place."

The sentence ended in a yawn. Estelle said eagerly, "I'll order the car for 11 if that suits you."

"Oh, I suppose it will," Marcia agreed. "Hand me that newspaper will you, child? And—read my letters for me. I don't know why people want to waste so much ink and paper anyhow."

Estelle settled to open and read Marcia's letters. At the third one she paused. It was from the one friend in whom Marcia confided. This friend—knowing Marcia's quest though not the purpose behind—had written, "Have you found your Pablo to by any chance?"

Estelle looked quickly at Marcia who was studying the late-in-the-season arrivals in Havana and did not see the look. When Estelle went on reading her hand shook a little. What could Marcia want of Pablo? Would she recognize him if she were to see him? Estelle, continuing her reading only half-conscious of the words, thought she probably would.

She spoke up then. "This is evidently from a close friend of yours. She signs herself Jane."

Marcia was instantly alert. "Give it here, child," she ordered sharply. "I didn't know there was a letter there from her."

"The envelope was addressed with a typewriter," Estelle explained. "She is secretary to Mrs. I. Brown-Bishop."

"I haven't read much of it," said Estelle. Marcia's eyes narrowed, moving down the page and coming upon the mention of Pablo, Estelle's too quickly given reassurance told that she had seen the words. It was unfortunate, Marcia could not, at the moment, think of an acceptable explanation so, with outward calm, she finished reading the letter, resolved to request Jane hereafter never to use that name again—at least in writing.

Estelle was standing. "Then you'll be ready at 11?" she questioned.

"Yes, darling."

"It's a good time for the trip. A grim day is best."

At the edge of Morro Castle Billings stepped from the car he had hired for the morning. "Ouch!" he groaned loudly. Then he climbed the hill stiffly and, on the way up, acquired a guide.

A smartly attired, hard-faced woman and a slender girl passed by, walking briskly and easily.

"The young one is the daughter of Mr. James Field," said the guide, nodding toward the couple.

"Is that so?"

"Yes, she is the beloved of Juanito, the fighter. They meet in the Parque."

"You don't say so?" Suddenly Billings was interested.

"Ah, yes! But Havana smiles upon the affair. Her father, Field, is very bad. The daughter is an angel and Juanito a good, good young man."

"About how old is he anyway?" Billings asked as if to make conversation.

"Twenty-one or two, I would suppose. Ah—he is a wonder! A Stoic, a Spartan. He shakes the head to many ladies who seek him." To illustrate the guide shook his head as does an absent-minded individual, vaguely troubled by the buzz of a fly. "Always Juanito remain not in love until she comes. Than—ah! He is captivated. He succumbs completely! It is a pretty affair and all wish him luck."

"Why doesn't he go to the old man and ask for the girl?" Billings questioned between puffs. The coquina-paved grade was steep. Twenty-one or twenty-two—that was the right age. Hang it, he was getting excited about the affair! His heart had plunged as he heard the boy's age.

"Go to him? To Field? Field would buy a nobleman for his daughter to wed! Good or bad, it would not matter."

"Hum—" said Billings.

They were in the fort then and under the shadow of a great wall. "Here," the guide began oratorically, and then suddenly stopped. He said in a harsh whisper, "There is Juanito himself. He must have followed her here! They say he trails the car when she rides in it!"

"Where?" asked Billings.

"Let's move over there. Easy and casual like."

"Mozy?" the guide echoed stupidly.

"Vamos. Move along. I want to get near him but don't want to be caught. See?"

"Ah, the intrigue!" The guide smiled, showing a flash of white teeth. He took up his lecturing, perhaps a little over-loudly. "If the Senator will step this way I will show him—"

Billings stood quite near to Pablo as he looked at a spot in the wall where, the guide said, a patriot had once dislodged a stone to find a way to freedom.

Billings studied the young man casually. A darned good-looking young fellow, he was. Tall and broad of shoulder with clear, blue eyes. He seemed to be watching the gate as though looking for someone. Then Billings saw the two women who had passed him near. The one who was Field's daughter lagged so that for a moment she was behind her companion. Billings saw her shake her head violently at Juanito.

He neared the young man. "Pretty rough time they had here, wasn't it?" he asked Pablo. No one brought up near Cienfuegos, Billings knew, would speak English without an accent. He waited Juanito's reply tensely.

"Yes, very bad," Billings heard and knew that the story about Tia Julia and Cienfuegos was a lie.

"This is my first trip here," he confided. "I think we kind of thought in the United States that all that hap-

NEW FORD V-8

Definite reasons for the superior performance and efficiency of the V-type engine

THERE'S no guessing about the superiority of V-type engines. They hold every major record on land, on water and in the air. For years they have been used for the finest motor cars in this country.

We designed a V-type engine for the Ford because it has certain basic, fundamental advantages that cannot be duplicated in any other type. It costs more to build a V-type engine—a great deal more. But we absorb that cost for the sake of getting better performance on the road. Here are just a few of the advantages of Ford V-8 design:

MORE EFFICIENT DESIGN—The Ford V-8 engine is more efficient because the eight cylinders are divided into two short banks of four each and placed opposite each other in a compact V-shape design—instead of being strung out in a long straight line.

ONE-PIECE CASTING of cylinder blocks, crankcase and exhaust passages. An exclusive Ford V-8 engine feature that means better performance and economy. Keeps operating parts in permanent alignment by providing exceptional rigidity for entire engine. Also increases smoothness, gives longer life to bearings and all moving parts.

SHORTER CRANKSHAFT—Compact V-type design of Ford engine permits use of shorter, more rigid crankshaft. This reduces vibration.

BETTER FUEL DISTRIBUTION—Shorter and more direct fuel passages to cylinders increase engine efficiency.

SIMPLER COOLING SYSTEM—Ford V-8 design brings all cylinders close together and results in simpler cooling system within the engine. The Ford V-8 has two water pumps.

MORE EFFICIENT LUBRICATION—Oil lines are shorter in the Ford because of V-8 design. Less distance for oil to travel. More efficient lubrication.

GREATER SMOOTHNESS because of inherently correct engine balance resulting from 90° V-8 design with 90° spacing of crank-throws on fully counterbalanced crankshaft. Precision weighing of pistons and connecting-rods assures accurate running balance.

INCREASED BODY ROOM—Ford V-8 engine takes up less space in hood because of shorter, more compact design. That permits more of car's length to be used for the passengers. It is one reason why the Ford V-8 has more interior room than any other low-price car.

PROVED PERFORMANCE—V-type engines hold every major record on land, on water and in the air. (Seaplane.) In every test, they show their superior efficiency and performance.

Those are the advantages of the V-type design. The foremost engineers in the country acknowledge the superiority of this type of engine and use it in the finest automobiles, speed boats and airplanes. Only the Ford gives you a V-8 cylinder engine for less than $2500.

The Ford V-8 is the most remarkable engine ever built because it combines V-8 performance with economy. It delivers more horsepower per gallon of fuel than any Ford engine ever built. Dynamometer tests prove it in the laboratory. Ford owners by the thousands have proved it on the road. They know, as you will know, that no car costs less to own and run than the New Ford V-8.

CRAWFISH HIDES BEHIND GUNMEN

were placed at convenient distances, and in the lobby there were from fifty to a hundred armed men doing duty as indoor pickets.

Nor was this all. The senior United States senator was not content with downstairs protection. In the hall adjacent to his room and in adjoining chambers there were scores of armed protectors. The plan of defense had been so systematically planned that ordinarily it would have taken a regiment of soldiers to reach the august person of the Kingfish. No trespassing eye was permitted to invade the rooms in which Senator Long kept his shock troops, but it was generally reported and believed that these reserve were armed with machine guns after the manner of the Al Caponites of Chicago.

It is difficult for the man or woman who was not in Baton Rouge to witness the opening of the legislature, to appreciate the strength of Huey's defenses. Nothing was left to chance. Every approach was guarded. The Kingfish emerged for air only late at night when the streets were practically deserted. When he left the hotel to visit the state capitol, it was fairly impossible to see him for the bodyguards surrounding him. And for the first time since he became governor in 1928, Senator Long did not make his appearance in either the house or senate chamber during his Baton Rouge stay. He did not even put his nose in either door.

All this in what is probably the most uncompromising democratic state in the world; and all at the public expense. Many of the bodyguards were employees of the state paid to perform duties which they had openly abandoned. Others are said to have been put on a temporary payroll. It was even said that some of them were imported gunmen—professional killers who, having no particular interest in any one in the state, could be depended upon to shoot quickly and without respect of person. Undoubtedly gunmen were imported by the Long forces in the Sanders fight. So, the idea that they were imported for the opening of the legislature, too, is well grounded.

All these precautions were taken in order that the senior senator might be free and unhampered in holding communication with his leaders and followers. The fear of bodily harm sat upon him mightily; and, since he trusted neither the mental resources nor fidelity of Governor Oscar K. Allen, he wanted to give all of his time to politics and none to need for personal defense. A bullet or two might have upset all of his calculations and he wanted to insure himself against that contingency.

Postponement of the reorganization movement was undoubtedly due to the senior senator's adroitness and cunning, coupled with the "extreme susceptibility" to put it mildly, of a few members of the house. Friends of reorganization counted 53 noses Sunday night. Monday morning 38 desertions were recorded. When the legislature met, there were forty-seven reorganizationists on the dotted line. And they are there now, ready to act whenever the occasion offers.

There was talk on Tuesday last of a resolution thanking Speaker Ellender for his impartial rulings, but the resolution didn't materialize. Personally, Mr. Ellender has many friends on both sides. But he is a Huey P. Long selection and that fact condemns him in the eyes of the independents. The fight on him is entirely political and not personal.

From the point of view of real public service, the first week of the legislative session has been practically without profit. Altogether, 109 bills were introduced in both houses, and some of them are of great public importance. But, instead of remaining in Baton Rouge and expediting the work of the legislature, the senators elected to take a four-day adjournment. Only a few of the bills were referred to committee and no hearings of consequence were fixed.

The high light of the week was Governor Oscar K. Allen's message, the authorship of which popular belief ascribes to Assistant Attorney General George M. Wallace, the real brains of the state administration. Mr. Wallace wrote the message, he made the best possible presentation of a lamentably poor case. His claims of administration efficiency and excellence are poorly grounded. One feature of the message which drew smiles of derision from both sides was the defense of the administration of the office of supervisor of public accounts. There are almost as many administrationists anxious to get rid of the present supervisor as anti-administrationists. And Governor Allen himself is counted in this class.

Of the 109 bills introduced during the week, 36 were senate bills and 73 house bills. This is not a large number for the first week of a session. The measures introduced reflected both administration and anti-administration policies.

Segregation of school finances became an active legislative issue on the second day of the session. Four measures were presented incorporating this principle. Senator Boudreaux and Representative Bauer, both of St. Mary, offered bills punishing the failure to segregate school funds with fine or imprisonment. Representative Hamiter of Caddo, introduced a bill classifying failure to separate school funds as diversion and punishing this offense with possible penal servitude, not exceeding 10 years. Representative Peyton of Caddo, offered a concurrent resolution calling for school fund segregation and the setting aside of avails of the tobacco, soft drink, corporation and electric power taxes for school purposes only.

The Boudreaux, Bauer and Hamiter bills would have the effect of law if either was passed and signed. The Peyton resolution is merely intended to put the legislature on record, since it provides that it shall segregate and dedicate school funds. The administration dodged a test of strength on this resolution Wednesday. It will probably be called from the calendar early next week.

Mr. Peyton has another measure which is sending shivers up and down administration spines. It prohibits legislators or relatives of legislators from holding state jobs. Many of them are holding state jobs now.

The Louisiana Tax Reform commission introduced its enabling acts and constitutional amendments which pave the way for its tax program. It is expected that the tax measures will be introduced during the coming week. Among the measures presented was one to provide a homestead exemption of $2,000 and one to raise the school funds provided by the state to $10,000,000. If this plan goes through, many local communities will be relieved of maintenance taxes and the state will take over their road bonds.

Some of the measures of general public importance introduced during the week are:

By Senator J. J. Wingrave—Prohibiting use of dial phones after January 1, 1936. (This is in the interest of telephone operators).

By Representatives Holloway, Edwards and Fazel—Exempting motor vehicles from property taxation.

By Representative Henriques and Duke—Repealing the laws imposing tobacco, soft drinks, corporation and electric taxes.

By Senator Moss—Permitting redemption of property sold for taxes on the installment plan.

By Senator Heywood—Authorizing the governor and conservation commission to pro rate production of crude oil.

By Representative Hamiter and 41 others—Bills reducing automobile license to a $3 minimum.

By Representative Kennedy—Appropriating $20,000 for an investigation of telephone rates.

By Representative Morelock—Bills to restore local option elections on liquor, with the parish as the unit.

By Representative Alexander—Prohibiting officers from exercising the duties of one office after qualifying for another. (This would apply to the case of E. A. (Bob) Conway, who is representing the state board of education from the fourth district at the same time that he is secretary of state).

By Representative Burke—To prohibit service charges on electricity and gas.

By Senator J. A. Richardson and Representative Hamiter—Reducing the interest on small loans from 42 per cent to 12 per cent per annum.

By Senator J. A. Richardson—Reducing legal interest rates in Louisiana from 8 to 6 per cent.

By Senator J. A. Richardson—Doing away with deficiency judgments in mortgage cases.

By Representatives Hood and Guillory—Providing for a graduated income tax up to 10 per cent.

Miss Killian To Head West Monroe W.C.T.U.

Miss Myrtle Killian was elected president of the young people's branch of the W. C. T. U. of West Monroe at a winter roast and business session held Friday night at the home of Mrs. Effie Pace. Other officers were elected as follows: Miss Elizabeth Bell, treasurer; Miss Georgia Whitehead, secretary; Miss Imogene Pace, superintendent of medal contests, and Miss Katherine Daniels, superintendent of Christian citizenship.

The winter roast, which was attended by about 30 young people of the organization, proved to be an enjoyable occasion. It was held in the park near the home of Mrs. Pace.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the West Monroe Methodist church.

HOTEL FRANCES BLDG.

Since Senator Long has no official connection with the state government, there was a feeling that he was an interloper. It was felt, also, that, un instructed and unguided, Governor Allen would not have had the courage to seek to bribe legislators. With Long out of the way, decent expressions of legislative will might have resulted. And the conviction was strong upon those who favored reorganization that only by unscrupulous and dishonest methods could the verdict for a change in the speakership be delayed. Left to its own devices, the house would undoubtedly have changed pilots. So, the dictation of Long aroused something closely resembling fury in the breasts of those gathered in Baton Rouge to see that the public will was not again thwarted by dishonest means.

It was with difficulty that order was preserved and bloodshed prevented. Since reorganization was not defeated, but only delayed; since the independents had made great inroads on machine strength; since nothing was taken away from the people that they actually had, conservative leaders deemed it necessary and prudent to hold public indignation in check. They pointed out to the assembled citizens that the independent movement in the house had gained great strength and the machine had been proportionately weakened; that the Louisiana Kingfish could not claim nor was he claiming a victory, but for the time being had merely saved his political hide by the closest of margins, and they promised unremitting effort to bring about the redemption of the state from plunderers and spoilsmen. The outraged citizens decided to leave the matter in their hands, but before taking their departure they formed a permanent state-wide organization, with Sheriff Henry N. Sherburne of Iberville, as chairman, to keep up the fight until the machine is destroyed. If necessary, last Monday's gathering can be reassembled in Baton Rouge at any time.

The state administration is indulging in no boasting about the postponement of house reorganization. It still fears that issue as a hen fears a wood owl. Already split on tax relief policies, the administrationists almost any day may go to pieces on the rock of discord. Having promised the earth and the fullness thereof, the machine must now pay off. Since Monday the independents have been promised additional strength. It is felt that soon or later, reorganization is certain. It will be precipitated if the administration fights efforts to investigate the highway commission, the state penitentiary and the Louisiana State university. A strong stand by the administration in favor of retaining the office of supervisor of public accounts will quicken it. So far as the state machine is concerned, the legislative air is charged with dynamite.

Governor Allen isn't following in the footsteps of his predecessor, Mr. Long, and charging on the house floor. He sticks his head in the door now and then, but that is all. Secretary of State E. A. (Bob) Conway, chief administration messenger, hovers around the outside rail. He is popularly supposed to be reporter for Senator Long.

There was talk on Tuesday last of a resolution thanking Speaker Ellender for his impartial rulings, but the resolution didn't materialize. Personally, Mr. Ellender has many friends on both sides. But he is a Huey P. Long selection and that fact condemns him in the eyes of the independents. The fight on him is entirely political and not personal.

BRINSMADE TAKEN
BACK TO HOSPITAL

Another Operation May Be Necessary On Injured Scribe's Leg

H. H. Brinsmade, editorial employee of the Monroe News-Star, was returned to St. Francis sanitarium about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, where he probably will undergo an operation on his right leg, which was crushed in an automobile accident last March 2. Further examination of the leg will be made before the operation is undertaken.

Physicians said that apparently two portions of a bone in the leg had healed without knitting back together and that an operation appeared necessary to cause them to knit together. Grafting of skin on the injured portion may also be necessary.

This is the fourth time Mr. Brinsmade has been in the hospital since he was injured. Immediately after the accident he was taken to the sanitarium and remained there four weeks. Since then he had returned on two occasions, for further examination and for removal of the cast.

Mr. Brinsmade was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Davie Knowles and owned by Prioleau Ellis, brother-in-law of the young woman, as he left a street car at the intersection of Jackson and Wood streets. He received two severe scalp lacerations, a broken left arm and the crushed leg, which was broken near the foot. Other injuries have healed, but the leg has been giving him serious trouble.

If an operation should prove necessary in order to make the wound heal properly, it is likely that he will be confined to bed or a wheel chair several months longer.

Missouri Pacific Car Workers Give Barbecue

Car men of the Missouri Pacific railroad enjoyed a barbecue supper Friday night at 7 o'clock, in front of the baseball grandstand at Forsythe park. The affair was a social get-together for car men and their immediate families. There are now between 40 and 45 Missouri Pacific car employees in Monroe.

AT THE PARAMOUNT TODAY

James Dunn and Shirley Temple, the four-year-old sensation of the screen, in a scene from the musical extravaganza, "Stand Up and Cheer," the attraction at the Paramount theater for the last times today. Twenty-five other stars appear in the cast, also scores of beautiful girls.

AT LOCAL THEATERS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—Yesterday at the Paramount theater Fox Film presented its biggest musical production of the new year, "Stand Up and Cheer," produced by Winfield Sheehan in association with Lew Brown, is a magnificent show packed with stars, grand music and spectacular revues.

Created against a background of ever-changing scenes and decorated with lavish splendor, are five breath-taking revues. They are staged to the rhythmic tempo of as many authentic songhits, each of which is tuneful and catchy. These should prove to be the popular numbers for 1934. A few of the thousand and one wonders that make the revues what they are, are the dazzling girls, the vocal chorus of 500, the hundreds of players, the 335 scenes, the 1,200 wild animals and the five bands of music. Through this host of musical and visual wonders, weaves a charming and romantic story.

Among the many stars that lend their fine talents to the film are Warner Baxter, Madge Evans, James Dunn, Ralph Morgan, Shirley Temple, Arthur Byron, John Boles, Stephen Fetchit and Nigel Bruce. Supporting the splendid work of these performers is an array of radio and stage personalities among whom are Sylvia Froos, "Aunt Jemima," Mitchell and Durant and Nick Foran.

Director Hamilton MacFadden did a praiseworthy job from the original story idea suggested by Will Rogers and Philip Klein. Sammy Lee staged the dance numbers to Lew Brown's and Jay Gorney's song numbers "Our Last Night Together," "Baby Take a Bow," "I'm Laughing," "Broadway's Gone Hill Billy" and "Out of the Red."

AT THE CAPITOL—One of the most ingenious mystery dramas of the season is "The Crosby Case," the Universal screenplay which opens an engagement at the Capitol theater today. Here is a motion picture which lays bare the inner workings of the

New York police department, and follows the investigation of a crime in a manner which maintains the interest at fever heat.

In the role of Scotty Graham, suspected of a murder and apprehended by the police, Onslow Stevens remembered as the long-suffering play-wright in "Once in a Lifetime" displays historic ability of a high order, and an earnestness which makes his character actually live on the screen. Similar praise goes to Wynne Gibson in the principal feminine part of Lynn Ashton, suspected of the same crime, and altogether lovely as a girl at bay. Alan Dinehart is especially convincing as the police inspector, and other important roles are finely played by Skeets Gallagher, William Collier, Sr., Warren Hymer, Edward Van Sloan and John Gray.

The story of "The Crosby Case" deals with the arrest and grilling of four people as suspects in a murder case, but each thinking that he has been jailed for something entirely different. The picture is a revelation in what may happen to a person through an unlucky chain of circumstances, and how life itself will take on a wholly different aspect. The story ends in a surprise which it would be an injustice to reveal.

Oak Grove Lions Club To Nominate Officers

OAK GROVE, La., May 19.—(Special)—To nominate officers to serve the club for the ensuing year, prior to an election next month, the board of directors of the Oak Grove Lions club will meet in special session Tuesday evening, at the courthouse, according to O. E. Huey, president of the board.

At a regular club meeting Wednesday noon, at Holland hotel, a resolution was passed, directed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and senators and congressmen of the state, urging the advisability of an appointment for "Baby" Jack Torrance of Oak Grove, nationally and internationally prominent track star, to the West Point Military academy.

Negro Church To Hold Baptizing In Ouachita

Mount Gilead Baptist church, negro organization, closed a revival meeting Friday night and will conduct a baptismal ceremony this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, according to announcement Saturday by the pastor, Rev. Felix Thompson. The baptizing will take place just north of the Illinois Central railroad bridge in the river on the West Monroe side.

HUGE LOAN FOR HOSPITAL FOUGHT

Tax Payers Take Position
Would Create Unnecessary Debt

(Special Dispatch From News-Star—World Legislative Bureau)

BATON ROUGE, May 19.—The Louisiana Taxpayers association, through its managing director, W. R. Lence, has placed itself on record as opposing the proposed $10,000,000 federal emergency loan to the New Orleans charity hospital on the ground that it will create a new and unnecessary public debt.

As a matter of fact, the proposition to borrow $10,000,000 for the hospital contemplates creation of a new obligation larger by $700,000 than the entire Louisiana bonded debt remaining from the reconstruction era.

In his declaration of protest, Mr. Lence makes a very valuable suggestion. He says that if the institution really needs additional facilities, they may be had by taking over the Long medical unit adjoining it. As has frequently been pointed out, this unit is valueless and costly as a Louisiana medical school and Mr. Lence suggests it may be turned into a hospital annex.

"A bill will be introduced in the legislature," he says, "to close the state medical college, called Medical Center, in the city of New Orleans. This magnificent new building is completely surrounded by a group of buildings of the charity hospital. It would make a splendid addition to that institution. If additional facilities are really needed for this hospital, the practical thing to do is to convert the medical center structure into a hospital building. The medical center structure is about 235 feet long and seven stories high and cost $1,208,373.36, exclusive of equipment."

Mr. Lence shows further that while the state paid its public school pupils last year $8.33 per capita, the per capita cost of Louisiana students at the medical center was $2,892.53. And the state was unable to meet all of its obligations to the public schools, while it met all of them to the medical school.

Mr. Lence shows that the boasted low cost of handling the indigent sick in Louisiana is not borne out by the official statistics. The per capita cost of public hospitalization in Louisiana is 96.8 cents; in thirteen southern states the average is 35.9 cents; in the entire country it is 43.1 cents. So it costs Louisiana over twice as much to maintain its charity hospitals as the American average. The statistics given are for 1931, the last year obtainable.

A determined fight is going to be waged to depoliticize the state's charity hospitals before the legislative session ends. In 1931 the state spent $1,393,498 on its hospitals and the bill has grown appreciably since that time. The figures for Louisiana were exceeded in 1931 by only two American states, Michigan and Pennsylvania. However, the per capita cost was larger in Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

them, or applauds efforts to romanticize crime."

Attorney General Cummings said: "Kidnapers, killers and racketeers are a serious menace."

Conversations between justice department officials and Lewis H. Douglas, director of the budget, about the money needed to tighten the grip of the law were scheduled for the next few days.

Attorney General Cummings was said to believe about $3,000,000 is needed to get men and equipment for the extended war on the underworld.

Legislators were considering a half-dozen more bills which the administration desires enacted.

DILLINGER GANGSTERS ARE INDICTED BY U. S.

MADISON, Wis., May 19.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today returned indictments against John Dillinger, Indiana desperado, and nine companions, four of whom are women, charging them with harboring and concealing persons sought by the department of justice.

Although accused of bank robberies, shootings, a jail break and a jail delivery and other criminal acts, the only federal charge against Dillinger heretofore was violation of the Dyer act prohibiting interstate transportation of stolen automobiles. Dillinger used the sheriff's automobile in his getaway after escaping from the county jail at Crown Point, Ind.

The grand jury submitted its report to Judge Patrick T. Stone in U. S. district court.

The Dillinger gang members named in the indictments were Dillinger, John Hamilton, Homer Van Meter, Pat Riley, Tommy Carroll, George "Baby Face" Nelson, Rose Anker, Ann Southern, Patricia Young and Marion Marr, whose correct name federal officials claim is Helen Gillis and who is said to be the wife of Nelson.

All of the women except Patricia Young were in the county jail under heavy guard. They were arrested April 22 when federal agents made an unsuccessful attempt to capture Dillinger in a raid on the Little Bohemia lodge near Mercer, Wis. During the raid W. Carter Baum was shot and killed and J. C. Newman was wounded. Both were department of justice agents.

OBITUARY

BASKIN RITES

Military honors were paid to John C. Baskin, 43, of 814 Oak street at funeral services held Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock. Rev. Ernest Holway, chaplain of the Barkdull Family post of the American Legion, held charge of the service and a number of other Legionnaires were in attendance.

Mr. Baskin died at 4:30 o'clock Friday morning, following an operation about a week earlier.

After the funeral services here the body was taken to Strong, Ark., for burial.

MRS. BLANCHE A. DONHAM

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., May 19.—(Special)—Mrs. Blanche Anderson, 21, wife of Hirschel Donham and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Anders of Lake Providence, died in the Lake Village sanitarium Thursday morning at 3 a. m.

Funeral services were held in Crowley, La., her former home, Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

Surviving relatives, besides her husband and parents, are a three-year-old daughter, Betty Jean, an aged grandmother, Mrs. A. L. Harlan, and five sisters, Mrs. Pearl McKaskle, Mrs. Louis Shaw, Sarah Lee Anders and Elsie May Anders of Lake Providence; Mrs. Frabelle Harper of Crowleyville, La., her former home, Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

TAYLOR JOSEPH BLACKWELL

Taylor Joseph Blackwell, 20, died at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon after a short illness at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Blackwell of 610 Cypress street, West Monroe.

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, pastor of the First Baptist church of West Monroe will officiate at the funeral services which will be held at the family residence this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in the Hasley cemetery near West Monroe.

Surviving are the father and mother and a sister, Mrs. T. Basil of Beaumont, Texas.

TO BID ON LEVEE PROJECT

FERRIDAY, La., May 19.—(Special)—Levee contractors operating in this area are planning to make bids on the Vidalia levee project, the contract for which will be let in New Orleans on May 22. Houses, office buildings and stores are being moved from the right-of-way and the work will begin as soon as the contract is let by the United States engineer's office in New Orleans.

SOLONS HIT BACK AS TAR, FEATHER IDEA IS OFFERED

away at their tasks, the capital reverberated with the thunder called down upon the heads of two of the three legislators of the Feliciana parishes at a mass meeting at Clinton, La., by citizens of the parishes who demanded "anti-Long representation" in the legislature, and by the legislators' replies.

A suggestion that one of the two assailed, Senator Richardson, of the bi-parish district, should be tarred and feathered, "taken to town, and given to Governor Allen," was made by J. T. Howell, of Clinton at the meeting called assertively as a protest against the idea which was termed Senator Huey P. Long's "one man rule" in Louisiana.

It was also recommended at the meeting that both Senator Richardson and Representative Dougherty should resign, the latter because of his not attending the assembly. Representative George Lester, anti-administrationist of West Feliciana, attended and spoke.

Richardson applied the short epithet expressing untruth, to Howell's charge that he had been swayed by material reasons to align himself with his assailant to meet him "man to man" or "run him out of the parish."

The state senator said he "waited until 2:30 a. m." for some one to try to tar and feather him" but that no one showed up.

Dougherty said the criticism was "solely because he did not come to the meeting and indulge in anti-Long verbiage."

He asserted he was interested in constructive legislation, including tax relief and marketing regulation.

Discussing his proposed tax reform commission "in lieu" of oil tax, Senator Heywood said under the present 4 to 11 cents severance tax, Louisiana produced oil turned in $1,797,373.30 last year on a total 25,452,752 barrels production.

He estimated that under the proposed 3 to 8 cents reduction, Louisiana producers would pay only $1,333,121.02, asserting that the state producers would thereby save $464,252.28 and would be further benefited by increased production under what he expected would be an increased federal allowable.

He said that the revenue raising burden would be shifted partially from the Louisiana oil to crude imported from other states totaling 50,308,800 barrels in 1933, mostly from Texas.

The senate membership dropped to 37 today with the departure of J. V. Sanders, Jr., for Washington to take his seat as representative from the sixth district.

And with his senate seat vacated, the anti-Long bloc in the senate suffered another loss. Sanders and the other member to resign, Cecil Morgan, who became a district judge in Caddo recently, led the fight against Long at the last session of the legislature.

Meanwhile additional measures were prepared for introduction next week, including four bills framed by representatives from Caddo parish.

Chief of these, suggested by Representative P. T. Alexander, proposes to hike poll taxes to $2 and dedicate the proceeds to a state old age pension fund.

The fund, which Alexander said he believed would yield half a million dollars annually, would be administered by three members of the commission to be appointed by the governor.

While the $1 poll tax presently levied now is turned into the school fund, Alexander said the amount was "negligible" to the schools and would "prove of great benefit to the aged destitute."

Alexander said a person to be eligible for the pension must be 60 or more years old, must have lived in the state for the past ten years and been a qualified elector for four years.

Funds would be distributed over the state in parishes where it was most needed and the commission would be required to file a detailed report of its activities.

Quarterly payment of taxes was proposed in a bill announced by Representative W. J. B. Chandler.

"The man who works on a salary or wage would be benefited," Chandler said, explaining that "many taxpayers have had a hard time at the end of the year scraping up a lump sum and would prefer to pay their taxes in installments."

Taxpayers could pay each quarter or miss a quarter, taking up the balance due later in the year.

"Or they can pay at the end of the year just as they do now," Chandler said.

Rupert Peyton, the other Caddo representative, said he would offer a bill to regulate conditions of men working under compressed air in below-water projects. Designed to reduce paralytic afflictions which often result from work of this character, Peyton said:

"Several workmen on the Shreveport bridge were victims of what is known as caisson disease. The American Federation of Labor, at my request, sent me a model bill adopted in New York state which regulates working hours on jobs of this type and I will introduce it next week. The state federation of labor has promised to help me with it."

Representative Chandler said he had another bill ready for introduction which would compel officials of public hospital institutions in the state to hold the body of a person at least 48 hours after death to give relatives an opportunity to claim it.

Chandler said he had been informed that officials had turned bodies over to undertakers without consulting relatives, where a body is not claimed, it would be given to an undertaker for burial at the expense of the state, as is done now, Chandler said.

MAYOR ATTENDS STATE MEET

FERRIDAY, La., May 19.—(Special)—Mayor Eugene W. Vogt has returned from Baton Rouge, where he attended the state meeting of the Louisiana Pharmaceutical association. Mayor Vogt was honored by being elected as a member of the executive committee of the state organization.

Savings bank, driving off with a wave of the hand, taking "between $25,000 and $100,000," as a souvenir.

LOS ANGELES reporters desiring to please an older man, headed an article Friday morning "Brisbane Gets Credit For Catching Stoddard."

Brisbane doesn't deserve any credit, and therefore does not want it. The young reporters discovered that Brisbane, Sheriff Biscailuz and Captain Bright, chief of the homicide squad, conspired to get from the kidnappers the name "of the owner of the Ford V-Eight car found in the garage of the kidnapper at La Crescenta," and thus identify a fourth kidnaper.

BRISBANE IS SUPPOSED to have proceeded, with ten times the genius of any Sherlock Holmes to "construct a psychological trap."

"The trap was set, Captain Bright was quick to take advantage of the moment, demanded, who owns that car?" and "before he knew what he was doing, Kirk blurted out Stoddard's name."

THUS HISTORY is written. Captain Bright, a good policeman and detective, evidently did get Stoddard's name by putting his question at the right moment, but nobody had mentioned any Ford V-Eight or any "psychological trap," to Brisbane, or anything about any "fourth man Stoddard." All the Sherlock Holmes credit must go to Captain Bright and Sheriff Biscailuz.

IN NEW YORK City apartment houses gentlemen and ladies keep three hundred and thirty-five thousand (335,000) dogs, each dog carrying germs in its fur, a majority a nuisance to neighbors, and many a menace to children.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand dogs in New York City apartments, are as completely out of place as would be 335,000 cows on New York City roofs.

General O'Ryan, New York police commissioner, announces, wisely, "owners of the 335,000 dogs will keep them muzzled and on a leash, or their masters will come to court."

You can't keep a cow in New York or drive her through the streets, although a cow would not bite anybody, and would give milk. Why keep 335,000 dogs?

POOR UNHAPPY S. J. Winner, only thirty-eight years old, living not far from here, wrote "Dear Wife and Family: (You know what is coming) I am sorry, but I have been in good to you or anyone else. Take good care of the little ones, Ada, they are wonderful."

"To Uncle Billy," he wrote, "I owe Mike eighty-four cents for gas. Please pay it as soon as you can. Get in touch with Victor, I think he will put me away."

Then he took the poison, strychnine, screamed in pain, and died apparently. Dr. A. D. Trotter injected adrenalin, gave heavy doses of sodium amytal, a heart stimulant. The discouraged heart returned to life again, and went on beating for three hours.

Then the strychnine won the fight and there was no more heart beat.

The great Socrates, dying of hemlock poisoning, said conscientiously, "I owe a cock to Aesculapius," and asked that the debt be paid.

The poor failure of 1934, about to die of strychnine poisoning, writes "I owe Mike 84 cents for gas" and asks that his debt be paid. They are equals now.

IN THE NOBLE world of "sport" which fills so many American pages and occupies the intellects of millions except when they are listening to the radio or sleeping, the noble Red man easily adopts the white man's "sport ethics."

In New Orleans, Tommy Marvin, Indian wrestler, was wrestling with Chief Chewski, also Indian. "Clamping a chin lock on the chief, Marvin calmly filled Chewski's eye with tobacco juice." Chewski, confronted by "a condition, not a theory," conceded the fall.

It is almost a pleasure to read farther on "Chewski won the last two falls and the bout by knocking Marvin unconscious."

FIRE DESTROYS 3 BUILDINGS

FERRIDAY, La., May 19.—(Special)—Three frame buildings located in the southern section of Vidalia, parish seat of Concordia, were destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin on Wednesday morning. The houses were being prepared for removal from the right-of-way for the new levee line which will border the southern part of Vidalia. A fire truck from the Natchez fire department aided in the battle against the blaze.

FIRST PRESIDENT OF TECH WILL BE HONORED MONDAY

Portrait Of Col. Arthur T. Prescott To Be Unveiled In Library

RUSTON, May 19.—(Special)—As a tribute to Col. Arthur T. Prescott, who served the Louisiana Industrial institute, now Louisiana Tech, as its first president from 1894-99, a painting of the noted Louisiana educational figure will be unveiled at the college library here at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Painted by Ella Miriam Wood, a New Orleans artist, the portrait will be presented and accepted in ceremonies during which Harry Howard, Tech treasurer and first graduate of the institution here, will preside.

Colonel Prescott at present is a professor of government at Louisiana State university. Before becoming president of the Louisiana Industrial institute he was commandant at L. S. U. Several years ago, Colonel Prescott donated a collection of books which was the nucleus of the thousands of volumes amid which his portrait will hang in the Tech library building.

In addition to several musical selections, including vocal and orchestral numbers, the program for the unveiling ceremonies will be as follows: Mr. Howard, presiding and representing the class of 1897; W. H. Hodges, Elm Grove, representing the class of 1898; Howard Warren, Shreveport, class of 1899; John Wartelle, Washington, La., 1900; Walter Bowman, Tech student of Grand Bayou, 1934; response, Colonel Prescott; President G. W. Bond, representing Louisiana Tech.

The unveiling program will be part of the Tech commencement activities, which will begin Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, with the baccalaureate sermon being delivered in the main auditorium by Dr. John M. Moore, Methodist bishop, of Dallas, Texas.

Other events on the commencement program include vespers services on the campus at 6:30 p. m. Sunday; faculty reception for the senior class, 8:30 p. m. Monday; president's breakfast for the senior class on the lawn in front of the president's home, 8 a. m. Tuesday; commencement exercises in the main auditorium, 10 a. m. Tuesday, with President Charles C. Sealeman of Southern Methodist university, Dallas, delivering the address; alumni-senior luncheon on the campus at 12 o'clock Tuesday, and an alumni business meeting in the Tech auditorium at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The commencement exercises will be featured by the presentation of degrees to the largest graduating class in Tech's history, there being 124 candidates for diplomas.

HAMILTON GIVEN LONG SENTENCE

bing the bank of $500 on April 25, and would accept a life term in prison, efforts to have him sentenced to death for the crime would be discontinued. This agreement was carried out.

Hamilton pleaded guilty and after testimony from a few Lewisville witnesses: had been heard, the jury promptly handed out the prison term.

To Hamilton, the 99-year sentence means virtually nothing, as he already faced sentences aggregating 263 years.

The 263 years in sentences were imposed on Hamilton about a year ago when he was tried at various points in the state for robberies and a killing. Authorities at that time sought a death sentence. Hamilton was sent to Eastham state prison farm and served a few months. On January 15 he escaped under cover of machine gun fire directed at guards, allegedly by Clyde Barrow, the killer with whom Hamilton formerly was a partner in crime. A guard was killed in the escape and Hamilton may be prosecuted on some charge growing out of his death.

BLAZE SWEEPS CHICAGO AREA

ished in their stalls but others were herded to hives. Pens, corrals, runways, plants, sheds and other wooden structures in the yards burned like paper boxes in the wave of fire.

Smoke at the height of the fire could be seen as far away as South Bend, Ind., by aviators. The flames were clearly visible from the tops of taller Loop buildings, five miles to the north.

A series of explosive blasts set off by firemen to stop the tide of flame, razed several structures in its path but was effectual in its course.

Mayor Edward Kelly termed the blaze the worst since most of the community was laid waste by the fire of 1871 and gray-haired Marshal Corrigan described it as the most extensive he had ever seen.

Among the major buildings damaged or completely ruined were the livestock exchange building, housing many administrative offices; the hall of the Percheron Society of America; the huge stock yards amphitheater and Dexter pavilion, scene of many blue-ribbon horse shows and livestock exhibitions; the Drovers National bank; the stock yards inn; the Stock Yards National bank; the P. Brennan railroad offices; the Agar Packing company; an American Express branch; an elevated train station; the Omaha Packing company's wholesale market and the block square plant of the Equipment Corporation of America.

Scores of rooming houses, bungalows, apartment buildings, railroad cars and other structures were also on the list of lost property.

Refugees, some of them openly weeping, trudged away with a few valuables on their backs in a tragic panorama reminiscent of war times.

But that was only one element in a drama as huge and stark as Chicago has witnessed recently. Bankers looked sorrowfully at vaults that turned into glowing sieves, but they believed no currency had been lost. Executives feared the destruction of the livestock exchange, nerve center of the local hub of the industry, would hamper the packing business throughout the country for the next few weeks as loss of records and drafts would throw them out of normal operation.

Heroism stalked across the sulphuric scene as firemen and civilians climbed extension ladders and held nets to rescue persons stranded on the roofs of flame-enveloped buildings. Score of tales of individual prowess were related.

Firemen were hindered in their efforts to curb the progress of the flames by the fact that many streets into the area are blocked off by railroad tracks. The only through street east of the point where the conflagration started was Halsted street, almost a mile away. It was there that the fire fighters "dug in" and fought. Engines and pumps were hooked on every available water plug for blocks in that direction. The streets were rivers of water after an hour of fighting. It was there the fire was finally downed.

The district, famous over the world for its thriving industry, was a sorry spectacle of ruin tonight. Thousands of people thronged railroad embankments, bridges, tops of nearby buildings and even stood in the streams of water to watch the finale of the struggle of the firemen.

mittee. This group's functions will be advisory and planning.

Aid will be given to cotton, strawberry and rice workers, February 17 all farmers, share croppers, tenants and wagehands in the cotton and strawberry parishes were removed from relief rolls. Since then numbers of wage hands in the rice parishes also have been removed from relief.

It is proposed that initially the rural program will apply only to persons on ERA relief rolls and such persons who make application to local ERA offices for relief and are found eligible to receive assistance.

The program also provides arrangements for gardens and feed crops for destitute farmers who have homes but no means of self-sustenance, and the furnishing of cows, chickens and pigs. Canning centers are to be established and markets for sale of surplus produce, and centers for making and selling farm implements.

Employment is to be afforded rural towns through building community centers, repairing schools and roads, clearing lands for subsistence homesteads, building farm houses, and erecting dams and levees in areas where floods menace crops.

Past Week Full Of Activity For Members Of The Various Organizations Of Y. W. C. A.

The past week has been brimful of activity at the Y. W. C. A. with several delightful affairs honoring the mothers of exceptional interest to members of the various clubs.

Tuesday noon, members of the Senior Girl Reserves of the Ouachita parish high school held their final meeting at the parish school auditorium.

On Tuesday evening the Y. W. C. A. Woolworth girls' club were hostesses at a mother and daughter banquet at the Y.

The tables covered with yellow cellophane over white linen were centered with black bowls filled with pastel tinted blossoms.

Miss Callie Fluit presided and a message of greeting was given by Miss Louise Wroten. The response was made by Mrs. Oliver Byers in behalf of the mothers.

A most inspiring talk was made by Mrs. J. W. Worthington who discussed the traits of George Washington's mother. An interesting talk was made by Mrs. C. V. McGimsey who spoke on the subject of "Franklin Roosevelt's Mother."

"What Other Countries Think of Mothers," was the subject of a splendid talk by Miss Bobby Littlepage.

The program was concluded with a recitation of a poem "Mother," by Miss Dorothy Proffitt.

Guests enjoying this lovely affair were Mrs. A. L. Smith, Mrs. G. T. Harrell, Miss Gladys Rhodes, Mrs. Ruby Harrell, Miss Lucille Byers, Mrs. Oliver Byers, Miss Louise Wroten, Mrs. Wroten, Miss Nancy Buttita, Miss Mildred Buttita, Mrs. Buttita, Miss Dorothy Proffitt, Mrs. Emily Griggs, Miss Callie Fluit, Mrs. Fluit, Miss Bobby Littlepage, Mrs. Littlepage, Miss Ean Osterland, Miss Edna Baele, Miss Elise Johnson, Miss Johnnie C. Harris, Mrs. C. V. McGimsey, Mrs. J. W. Worthington, Mrs. J. B. Pollard.

Wednesday evening members of the Residence club met for their regular monthly club supper and plans were discussed for the play which members are rehearsing. It will be given in the near future for the benefit of the kitchen fund.

Members present at this time were Miss Frances Perdue, Miss Zana Belle Watson, Miss Alma Easley, Miss Pauline Sallee, Mrs. Sallee, Miss Katherine Pouncey, Miss Marjorie Herbert, Mrs. J. B. Pollard, Mrs. Sam Allen, Miss Velma Crawford, Miss Jetta Zeigler and Miss Marcelle Flowers.

On Thursday members of the Y. W. C. A. Morgan and Lindsey girls' club met at the Y. for their regular meeting and on Friday evening members met for vespers with Mrs. J. B. Pollard, leader.

Mrs. J. W. Thomson of Oakland, California, is the welcome guest of her sister, Mrs. Joe Kern and Mrs. Harriett Block. Mr. Thomson who is motoring through the country will arrive at a later date and following a visit here will return home accompanied by Mrs. Thomson.

her credit, is in the front ranks of contract experts . . . she plays a delightful game and never a sharp word for blundering partners . . . it really is a pleasure to watch her long fingers single out the winning cards with the odds against her. . . Patty Miller is another charming person, at bridge table or just socially . . . and by the way we simply marvel, every time we see her at the beauty of her hair. . . We rushed from Katie Pegram's Thursday afternoon to Mrs. Fagan Cox's garden fete where the literary lights of Monroe were acting as hostesses. . . One of the happiest guests present was Mrs. J. W. Platt, who, despite her crutches, was viewing the beauty of the garden from every angle. . . We found her bending over the bed of Queen Ann's lace, that attracted every guest. . . It was a delight to see this gallant soul in the old familiar haunts once more . . . she loves life, loves people and above all the beautiful things of nature

Engagement Of Miss Davis Announced At Beautifully Appointed Tea At Davis Home

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesley Davis announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Olive, to Dr. Lucius Felton Green; the wedding to be celebrated at 7:30 o'clock in the evening June 3, First Baptist church, Ruston, La.

Mrs. Davis announced the engagement of her daughter at a beautifully appointed tea, at her home, on North Vienna street, Ruston, Saturday, May the twelfth. Mrs. Davis, wearing a smart cream lace model was assisted by her two charming daughters and Miss Martha Hunt, the lovely young cousin of the bride-elect. Miss Mary Olive Davis wore an exquisite summer frock of ashes of roses French crepe and white mouseline de soie. Miss Charlotte Davis wore a beautiful white mouseline de soie model with green accessories.

The reception suite was a mass of glorious garden flowers in shades of yellow and green. The beautifully appointed, lace draped tea table in the flower banked dining room was centered with a luscious confection significant of the approaching nuptial event. A miniature church fashioned of white wedding cake was the central ornament. A golden chariot in which was seated a miniature bride and bride-groom stood at the church door. Handsome silver tea services placed at either end of the table were presided over by Mrs. G. A. Adams, James L. Martin, Mrs. V. M. Davis and Mrs. Stewart Hunt. Individual cakes embossed in yellow were inscribed with the letters M. O. D.—L. F. G., June the third.

The wedding theme was portrayed in every detail of this charming event, with exceptional artistry reflected in the decorations of the salarium where the guests were permitted to register in the beautiful bride's book, a gift to the prospective bride from her sister.

Mrs. Davis was assisted in receiving the guests, numbering two hundred or more, by the following beautifully gowned matrons and young girls: Mmes Lucius Green, mother of the groom; V. M. Davis, G. A. Davis, G. A. Adams, Jas. L. Martin, Ed Stinson of Monroe; Glen Laskey, T. L. James, Jr., Robert Upchurch, Lyndon Glasgow, Marvin Green, T. A. Green, Frank Price, Jas. H. Mays, S. B. Ritchie, Glen Shadow, Jack Ritchie, P. N. Davis, Allen Barksdale, Alex Hunt, W. J. Horton, W. T. Hadley, R. M. Davis, O. O. Goyne, W. S. Harrell, W. H. Cook, Floyd James, Bill James, Edwards Willis, Sanders Baskin, Henry Hodde, Bill Kidd, Abe Harris, Raymond Heard, A. K. Goff, Stewart Hunt. Misses Evelyn Ponder, Myrtle Iva Green, Mildred Mays, Billy Mays, Mattie Sue Martin, Frances Martin, Frances Davidson, Margaret Rainwater, Hazel Meeks, Louella Warren, Dola Green and Mrs. O. N. Reynolds of Monroe.

Miss Davis is a great social favorite and her many friends will be glad to know that she and Dr. Green will make their home in Ruston. Miss Davis attended Breneau college at Gainesville, Ga., where she became a popular member of Alpha Chi Omega social sorority. She also attended the Louisiana State university. Dr. Green is a graduate of Atlanta Southern Dental college where he received his degree. He is a member of Delta Sigma Delta fraternity. Dr. Green is an outstanding citizen and merits great respect in his profession. He is active in the Methodist church circles where he is superintendent of the Sunday school.

ments of the club members in a garden little talk.

Chairs were grouped in semi-circle near the gallery where Mrs. Henry Whitfield's beautiful, lilting soprano was heard in a group of Indian songs accompanied by Miss Florence Zeigler. Mrs. Blanche Oliver read a dramatic paper on "India," prepared by Mrs. Whitfield, in connection with the club's program study of India this year. The soul-stirring music of this mysterious country was dramatically interpreted by Miss Zeigler in a group of piano numbers.

Later, the guests were invited to the refreshment table in one section of the garden where strawberry punch

Distinctive Affair On The Virginia Roof Claims Two Hundred Guests On Friday

With the picturesque roof garden of the Virginia hotel for a setting, fashionable Monroe thronged the spacious garden, Friday evening when Mrs. John Leo Keenan entertained with one of the smartest affairs of the entire year. The brand of hospitality, Monroe society has long since learned to associate with affairs arranged by this charming hostess, was dispensed with grace and artistry on this occasion.

Mrs. Keenan, unusually lovely in a frock of pastel pink chiffon, pink slippers and wide-brimmed garden hat of pink straw, welcomed her guests at the entrance to the roof. Mrs. H. R. Speed, wearing a beautiful, summery frock of dusty pink chiffon with wide-brimmed felt hat of the same shade, assisted Mrs. Keenan in the courtesies extended.

A brief interlude, before the serving of supper permitted the guests to walk leisurely in the garden where an unobstructed view of the sunset, reflected in the sleepy waters of the Ouachita, is obtained. The flamboyant colors of the flowers blooming extravagantly in every nook and corner and in well-ordered beds, rivalled in beauty the glorious tints of the western sky. A desire for restful introspection immediately seizes one when they set foot in this enchanted garden at twilight. The judicious arrangement of plants and flowers, enhances the general beauty of this pent house garden throughout the changing seasons. Simply and without artifice the surroundings express the spirit of restfulness so necessary to the average person at some time during the day. An integral part of this garden is the rock pool where the constant dripping of water creates a refreshing, musical note in harmony with the peace and quietude.

In the glass enclosed section of the roof, where comfortable garden furniture invites one to lounge, refreshing aperitifs were served with small canows passed among the guests on silver trays by white clad attendants.

The two hundred guests found their places at the long supper tables by means of flower adorned placecards. A subtle blending of colors rendered the tables beautiful beyond compare. Each table was noted for its distinctive arrangement of flowers overflowing from tall crystal epergnes.

Pink Radiance roses and Madonna lilies, arranged in the most enthralling manner, graced the table where Mrs. Keenan sat at the head with a few honor guests. Exquisite nosegays fashioned of pastel shaded blossoms tied with pink satin ribbon were attached to each place card at this table. Vivid green tendrils of Chinese fern lead from the central floral piece to the edges of the table were small crystal bowls of pink and blue held of each table not only in the flowers comprising pink Radiance roses, blue corn flowers, orchid sweetpeas, yellow poppies and dwarf purple iris but in the French bon-bons in pink and blue crystal bonbonnières. Every detail of the gracious affair was beautiful and harmonious, reflecting the unerring taste of the hostess. In fact the entire scheme of things was sufficiently beautiful to have set Shakespeare singing a whole new sonnet sequence.

A luscious, three-course supper was faultlessly served with demi-tasse entered in the gleaming out-of-doors, where the guests lingered as the shadows deepened and lights of the city far below, like tiny stars, pricked the evening's dimness.

Monroe's social world, with few exceptions, was represented on this occasion.

Miss Florence Zeigler, pianist, and Mr. Sabbath, violinist, entertained with music from the classics during the evening hours.

An interesting event of this month was the marriage of Miss Eula Morris and Mr. William Kennedy Borland which was quietly solemnized Saturday morning, May 12th, at the Methodist parsonage with the Reverend W. C. Scott officiating in the presence of intimate friends and members of the family.

Mrs. Borland is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Morris of this city. She is a graduate of the Louisiana state university and prominent member of the social circle in which she moves.

Mr. Borland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Borland of Oil City, Pennsylvania. He is affiliated with the Mississippi River Fuel corporation. Mr. Borland is a graduate of Cornell university and is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Immediately following the ceremony Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Borland left on their honeymoon and upon their return to this city, will be at home to friends at 310 Auburn avenue.

Friends have received the following interesting announcements:

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McConnell of Girard, Louisiana announce the marriage of their daughter Edna to Mr. W. O. Lang on April twenty-ninth. Nineteen hundred and thirty-four Jackson, Mississippi

Twilight Garden Fete Is Beautiful Event Of Last Week At Fagan Cox Home

'Neath the towering oaks in the garden of Mrs. Fagan Cox's beautiful suburban home, charming women in summery frocks of flowered chiffon, gayly colored organza and pastel shaded lace, were welcomed by members of the Twentieth Century Book club who entertained members of the Literary clubs of this city and West Monroe at five o'clock tea on Thursday.

Mrs. Cox and her lovely daughter, Miss Johnnie Cox in a beige lace model, assisted in bestowing courtesies, outstanding being the presentation of exquisite corsages to the president of each club, Mrs. Courtney Oliver, president of the Twentieth Century Book club, in a blue flowered organdy gown, voiced the senti-

SOCIETY

Passing Of Jazz Age Brings Back Old Fashioned Manners And Dignity Of Other Days

With the passing of the jazz era, society seems in many ways to be reverting to old-fashioned manners. To begin with, a young woman is bound to have added dignity when she wears a train on her dress. Somehow she can't help acting a little bit the way her grandmother did when a girl, if she dresses in romantic ruffles. The clothes exert an indubitable influence on courteous manners. An escort who has to help a "date" with a long skirt and big hat into his car is going to find it quite appropriate to bow a little at the waist when he closes the car door. Merry widow hats, which have bloomed like the flowers this spring, are bringing back more feminine ways and means of flirtations. There are even rumors now that fans and parasols will be carried before the summer is over. Many of the customs which our fathers inherited, such as the ceremonious politeness that was largely scrapped during the rush of World war days and forgotten completely in the jazz age following, are coming back. "Making calls" used to be part of the ceremony of Sundays. And a silk hat was always a part of the gentleman's costume. For some years many of the silk hats of Monroe have been reminiscent of moth balls whenever the owners were obliged to wear them on official occasions, but the new generation is finding that it looks rather well in a top hat.

The silk hat and white ties have been appearing at the country clubs and big balls the last season, and now they are invading restaurants. The end of prohibition has also meant the exit of casual entertainments. A dinner in a cafe can be an occasion now, with the elegant accessories of wine, formal clothes and course dinners as a part of the gala affair. The modern hostesses say this is the new deal in social customs.

There are multitudinous indications to show the reversion to old-fashioned ways. With the return of the rock crystal wine decanter to the family buffet, it is long longer necessary to endure the confusion of getting hard liquors, cracked ice and all the different set-ups. A casual caller may be offered a choice of wines.

And big balls do not need to be spoiled by a dizzy series of cocktail parties before the music begins. Formal dining is coming back in homes, clubs and restaurants. People are taking time to linger over their courses, and candle light, moderate drinking, and strident music are part of the picture. More than half of the music pieces played at recent big balls have been waltz tunes, and the new generation is beginning to tune its manners and ways of living to the things its forefathers considered good taste.

was served from a huge block of ice with hollow center. The table was covered with yellow cellophane and strewn with blue corn flowers. Little cakes, gaily embossed in every flower shade, were passed among the guests by a coterie of beautiful young girls in pink, blue and yellow organza frocks. They were Gladys Whitfield, Nan Drew, Carolyn Oliver, Betty Reilly and Elizabeth Clark. Mrs. Louis Langford, a pink organza frock also assisted in the serving.

The guests lingered in the fragrant garden long after sundown, enjoying to the fullest the beauty of the evening, while the twilight shadows deepened.

Members of the Twentieth Century Book club acting as hostesses were Mrs. Courtney Oliver, Mrs. L. N. Larche, Mrs. W. M. Washburn, Mrs. S. M. McReynolds, Mrs. T. O. Brown, Mrs. Sam Collins, Mrs. W. B. Clark, Mrs. Sydney Stroud, Mrs. Manning McGuire, Mrs. Henry Whitfield, Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. M. H. Munnholland, Mrs. John Munnholland and Mrs. E. Holloway.

The affectionate interest of friends is centered in the following announcement:

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Busby announce the marriage of their daughter Effie

to Mr. Charles B. Rozell

March the eleventh, 1934.

Mr. and Mrs. Rozell are now at home to their friends at 2901 Gordon avenue.

Miss Grace Jenkins, Mrs. Fillmore Meadows and two lovely children are spending the week end in Louisville, Ark., where they are the guests of relatives.

Literary Club Members Hear Talk On Music

Mrs. Roger Frisbie's contribution to National Music week was a paper of unusual interest to members of the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book club on the subject of famous composers. She said: "I have chosen Marcel Dupree as the composer we will discuss today. First because he is living and is still young (Mr. Dupree has just reached forty-seven); because he is a very famous composer and teacher; because he is probably the greatest living organist, and also because we were privileged to know him, and Mr. Frisbie studied with him. He is a charming gentleman, very friendly and pleasant, and very modest."

He was born in France in 1886 and early exhibited a passion for music. At four years of age, having heard Widor (one of the greatest organists that ever lived) play at the dedication of the great organ at St. Duen he determined to become an organist. At seven he commenced the study of music seriously. The next year he played Bach for Guilmant, who consented to take him as a pupil. (I might say here that Dupree is considered one of the outstanding authorities on Bach.) When ten years old he appeared in public, beginning a career which has been a long series of triumphs. At twelve years of age he was appointed organist of the great organ in St. Vincent's church at Rouen. His first important composition, an oratorio, "Jacob's Dream," was performed in 1901 when Dupree was only fifteen years old. He then entered the Paris conservatory where he later took a series of prizes and at twenty-eight, found himself the winner of the supreme honor and the grand prize of Rome, for his cantata, "Psyche." Two years later he became organist at Notre Dame, probably the best known cathedral from the American viewpoint. In 1920 he performed the almost incredible feat of playing from memory the entire organ works of Bach in a series of 10 recitals at the Paris conservatory. At his New York debut in Wanamaker auditorium in November, 1921, Dupree created a sensation by improvising a complete symphony in four movements upon themes presented to him but a few moments before. This was declared by newspaper reports, a "musical miracle." Dupree broke all records previously established for concert tours by giving 275 during the first three tours. He appeared in New Orleans during his sixth tour in 1923. Besides his American tours, Mr. Dupree has appeared in England, Ireland, Scotland, Switzerland, Italy and Belgium.

All his concerts are given from memory, which is a wonderful feat for an organist, as very few can do it. Occasionally he is not able to practice on an organ before a recital, but he always has a copy of the specifications sent to him so he may study it. He never forgets the specifications of an organ once he has seen them.

Mr. Dupree has a lovely home at Meudon several miles from Paris on the way to Versailles. There is an auditorium built at the side which seats about 100 and in it he has the organ that belonged to Guilmant, which has of course, been rebuilt. He teaches a few pupils on the organ although he has been at the head of the Paris National conservatory since 1926 and does most of his teaching there.

Mr. Dupree's compositions are many and of varied nature. He has written a book concerning improvisation, also, "Methods of the Organ." His works show the keen insight of the scholar, the technical facility of the great organist, the sure artistic touch of a great talent, the restraint of a fine spirit with the sincerity of emotion and the sterling spirituality of the man.

Prominent on the speakers' roster during the thirty-eighth annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Des Moines the past week was Mrs. Harold L. Lickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, whose topic was "Educating the Child to Meet New Conditions." Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of the university chapel, University of Chicago, was another speaker of note heard by the hundreds of delegates from the 48 states and Alaska and Hawaii, official information discloses.

The problem of health among adolescent children was brought before the assembly by national chairman of child hygiene, Miss Mary Murphy, who urged the high school parent-teacher associations to concentrate their attention upon this subject in a concerted effort to ward off dangers of tuberculosis, particularly, and other diseases which prey upon the early 'teen ages. Miss Murphy suggested that high school units of the P.-T. A. "promote as a health project, medical examinations of high school students including tests for tuberculosis, which because of its insidious nature, is often unsuspected until it reaches advanced stages."

Great interest is manifested over the state in the current session of the Louisiana legislative body, before which two important measures carrying the state parent-teacher sponsorship, are considered. They are the segregation bill, asking that school funds be kept separately from the general treasury; and the marriage bill, seeking to raise minimum marrying ages from 12 to 16 for females, and from 14 to 18 for males in Louisiana. Both amendments sought are deemed in line with the parent-teacher work of child welfare, officials of the organization declare.

The Ouachita Parish P.-T. A. held its final meeting for this term Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. R. L. McHenry, the president, presiding.

Mrs. McHenry reported that every pledge had been paid. A concise report from the convention was read. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Clifford Johnson; vice-president, Mrs. H. C. Mize; secretary, Mrs. Eloise Slater; treasurer, Mrs. Jason Johnson. Mrs. E. Faulk was appointed to contact the legislators relative to the following bills: Segregation of school tax, marriage bill, the child labor amendment.

Mr. Fred Williamson gave an inspiring talk on "Citizenship." The Ouachita Parish Girls' Quartet, composed of Miss Gladys Hughes, Miss Hazel Bowlin, Miss Bonnie Burge and Miss Mary Katherine Pennell rendered a lovely vocal selection. Mrs. McHenry gave a splendid report on the work accomplished this year.

The second grade in the grammar school and the seniors in the high school won the banners for having the largest number of parents present.

The last meeting of the Crosby Parent-Teacher association of the current school term was held Wednesday afternoon, with the meeting called to order by Mrs. Aline Davis, vice president. Mrs. W. C. Curry, and the mother singers opened the meeting with a group of old-time favorites.

Mrs. Carl Riggins, chairman of the program committee, announced the following numbers, a piano solo by Margie Aulds and a clever reading by Miss Clarice Holmes. Both were thoroughly enjoyed.

Judge Decker Moore, was the speaker of the day, speaking on "Community Standards Necessary for the Safety of the Children." The subject was well handled by Judge Moore from all angles.

A short business session was held and a check was presented Prof. Welch as the association's payment on the library books bought by the school. Professor Welch gave a report on the May day pageant held May 4th. The winning float was entered by the West Monroe State bank, second prize went to Frank Varino and company. The association wishes to thank all who helped make this pageant the most successful ever attempted in the Twin Cities.

The association is truly sorry that Mrs. T. L. Tippit continues to be ill at her home due to a recent accident. Mrs. Tippit is a wonderful worker in the Crosby association. The children of Crosby school remembered Mrs. Tippit, with gifts of flowers last week, the thought prompted by Mrs. Amy Cook and Mrs. King Hunt, as a surprise. The new committees were announced for the coming year, but room mothers will not be appointed until the beginning of school for the fall term. Summer roundup committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. J. L. Robertson, Mrs. H. Cash and Mrs. L. Delaney, and the roundup will be held soon. The banquet to be given to the faculty by the association will be Friday, May 25th, which is in appreciation of their services and help during the past year.

The Juvenile Musical Coterie held the last meeting of the year Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. M. Harper with Mildred Wales and Myrtle Ruth Harrison, co-hostesses.

An interesting program of American composers was rendered as follows:

Paper: "American Composers .... Sarah Elizabeth Randle Arabesque (Wrangell) .....

Paper: "Life of Ernest R. Kroeger .....

"In the Pagoda .... Gene Flournoy "The Daisy" .... Laura Flournoy "Catch Me" (Smith) .... Mildred Wales "Spring's Approach" (Kroeger) .....

"Autumn" (Kroeger) (Gest) .... Evelyn Jane Smith "Little Humming Bird" (Gest) .... Evelyn Jane Smith "Autumn" (Kroeger) .....

Duet: March (Sousa) .... Sidney Marie Loe and Jane Boardman

New officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Barnara Thompson; vice-president, Laura Flournoy; secretary, Mildred Wales; treasurer, Mary Levinia Inabnet; reporter, Katherine Kugler; historian, Martha Grafton.

The following members were present: Joan Boardman, Lell Dean Frasier, Gene Flournoy, Laura Flournoy, Martha Grafton, Myrtle Ruth Harrison, Vivian Harper, Katherine Kugler, Faith Knapp, Sidney Marie Loe, Nell McCormick, Gloria Frances Major, Carolyn Oliver, Sarah Elizabeth Randle, Evelyn Jane Smith, Barbara Thompson, Mildred Wales and their counselor, Miss Skirvin.

Mrs. Lucile Sharp of Birmingham, Ala., was delightfully surprised Wednesday evening when a group of intimate friends and members of W. B. A. Review No. 11 met in the home of Mrs. Lillian Johnson. A charming entertainment was enjoyed in commemoration of Mrs. Sharp's birthday anniversary.

The highlight of this joyous occasion was the presentation of beautiful gifts presented by friends.

In conclusion delicious sandwiches cake and punch was served to Mrs. Anna Benton, Mrs. Mae Luckey and her charming mother, Mrs. Mitchell of Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. Clyde Culver, Mrs. T. C. Burford, Mrs. Lottie Smith, Mrs. Myrtle Parker, Mrs. Lucy Durbin, Mrs. Buelah Baskin, Miss Netia Smith, Marjorie Luckey, Mrs. Nora Moak, Mrs. Sallie Gertrude Aulry, Mrs. Aline Boyette, Mrs. Evelyn Kelley, Mrs. Bessie Bennett, Mrs.

Minnie Williams and hostess, Mrs. Lillian Johnson.

Mrs. Eugenia Oliver, during convalescence from a recent illness, was seized with a serious attack of malarial fever and is again confined to her bed to the regret of her many friends.

How CHARMING are YOU? THE SENSATION OF THE BEAUTY ART BEAUTEX-PLASTIC is now available in our shop. Do not confuse this scientific facial with ordinary facials. It is more than a facial. BEAUTEX-PLASTIC is a spongy substance. When taken from the container and heated it becomes a smooth, thick fluid. In this form it is applied to the face, warming, penetrating into the open pores, cooling gradually until it becomes ice cold. This reaction closes the pores, causing a change in the temperature of the skin surface and at the same time absorbing the impurities. While it remains on the face for fifteen to thirty minutes it gets colder, creating the pleasant tingling sensation of an ice-pack. It is so soothing and restful to the nerves that it causes a complete relaxation, and the patron falls asleep. During the cooling process it molds into a flexible plastic that is very easily removed, in one piece. An inspection of the inside of BEAUTEX-PLASTIC will prove that the pores are thoroughly cleansed, permitting the skin to breathe freely. ## Old Classmates Greet Each Other Across The Banquet Table At The Neville School

Graduates of the Monroe city high school dating back to the class of 1890, smiled across the flower banked banquet table at Neville high school Friday night when members of the Alumni association entertained at dinner in honor of this year's senior class.

A golden color theme was developed in every detail of this interesting event which brought together old classmates and members of the faculty in the spirit of camaraderie. An extravagant array of yellow blossoms, reflecting the 1934 class colors, graced the long U-shaped table, graciously presided over by Mrs. Henry Haas, the popular president of the Alumni association.

Members of the faculty were called upon to address the assemblage, outstanding being the inspiring remarks made by Mrs. Minnie Ruffin, one of the most generally beloved members of the city school faculty. Miss Lida St. Clair Benton, who retired from the ranks a few years ago following an enviable record in the English department of the city school, was an honor guest and responded to the urgent request for a few words. Professor Neville and Professor Kenney contributed illuminating talks and as customary, impressed the young students with the wisdom of their words.

The president of the 1934 graduating class, Mr. Robert Pappas, contributed a few interesting remarks also the class sponsors, Miss Clara Hall and Miss Hester. Mayor Arnold Bernstein was introduced and spoke briefly along educational lines. During the serving of the delicious four course dinner, Mr. James Cavaness entertained with a tap dance number and Miss Nellie Breaud rendered a beautiful song number, accompanied by Mrs. Lydia Oakland Nichols. Mrs. Regina Gill and Frank Breese gave a skillful interpretation of the "Caricature."

Mrs. Archie Melgrem, an active member of the Alumni association, was elected president for the coming year at this time. Mr. Irvin Shlenker was elected vice-president, Miss Marshall Russell, secretary and Mr. Frank Breese, treasurer.

The following members of the senior class were present:

Meeting Of The Book Club Held On Wednesday

The final meeting of the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book club was held Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. with a large number in attendance. The president, Mrs. C. C. Colvert, presided, with Mrs. H. H. Douglas acting as secretary during the absence of Mrs. J. Noble White. A favorite poet was named in answer to roll call. Final reports from various committees were heard and the new year books distributed. Much admiration was expressed for the attractive work in the making of the books, and a vote of thanks extended Mrs. Colvert, Mrs. V. S. Garnett and Mrs. Fred Bennett who designed and assembled the books. It was unanimously voted to present a cash donation to the Y's executive board to be used to purchase some needed article in the home. One new member, Mrs. Louis Langford was admitted into the club at this time, bringing the number to fifty-three.

With business cleared for the year, Mrs. Colvert announced the program, "Early Poetry" by Mrs. R. T. Hart, and "Favorite Poems From Contemporary Poets," by Mrs. L. V. Tarver. In her talk Mrs. Hart first defined poetry, the different forms, and spoke most interestingly of the poetry of the different countries and by the writers who have come down to us through the ages. Saying that poetry "is a concrete and artistic expression of the human mind in emotional and rhetorical language." Mrs. Hart brought to her listeners beautifully illustrated poems of the different forms, the burlesque, the epic, and lyric. Mrs. Hart's splendid talk paved the way for Mrs. Tarver's group of "Favorite Poems From Contemporary Poets." Confining her selection to poems that deal with the month of May and its outstanding days, the following poems were offered by Mrs. Tarver: "The Watcher" by Margaret Widemeyer, and "A Prayer For A Sleeping Child," by Mary Carolyn Davies. These two in deference to Mother's Day. Then followed that beautiful poem of William Herbert Carruth, which is so generally admired, "Each In His Own Tongue;" "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, and as a final number, "My Heart's Desire" from "Corn Pone and Pot Likker," by Blanche G. Oliver.

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Colvert with customary graciousness introduced the new officers for next year. Mrs. E. C. Gibson, the newly elected president, responded with a beautiful tribute to the retiring president, the sentiments which were reflected in the hearts of every member for the president who guided the destiny of the club during 1933-34. Present were: Mrs. Frank Black, Mrs. Fred Bennett, Mrs. H. T. Carley, Mrs. Ross Coates, Mrs. C. C. Colvert, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, Mrs. H. H. Douglas, Mrs. S. K. Elliott, Mrs. W. C. Faulk, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. R. T. Hart, Mrs. Martin Hebert, Miss Ione Hebert, Mrs. N. D. Hurdle, Mrs. J. E. Kersh, Mrs. William Leber, Mrs. John Leist, Mrs. Parker McComb, Mrs. George Marsh, Mrs. Howard Martin, Mrs. R. W. Miles, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. Paul J. Neal, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. C. B. Shakelford, Mrs. Dudley Stone, Mrs. Charles Swain, Mrs. L. V. Tarver, Mrs. Albert Trotter, Mrs. J. R. White.

Mrs. Mae Carleton welcomed members of the Calhoun Study club in her home Thursday afternoon. Beautifully arranged urns of sweet peas and roses were placed in the reception room.

This being a home demonstration meeting, Mrs. Jewell McQuiller demonstrated the making and baking of sponge rolls.

Miss Tuten and Miss Wyatt, who are assisting Mrs. McQuiller, classified the cornbread made by the members. Mrs. Blaine Brown took first place with a score of 96 per cent, Mrs. Jake Humble came next with 93 per cent.

During the social hour a delicious salad course was served to Mesdames C. Z. Roberts, J. L. Brown, Jake Humble, B. Humble, C. Hodge, S. Stewart, P. K. Wright, B. N. Pipes, R. L. Clayton, J. E. Bryan, J. L. Heath, Jr., Miss Rupert Perry, Miss Clothilde Tuten, Miss Ava Wyatt and the hostess, Mrs. Mae Carleton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Holloway will return home today from a motor trip to New Orleans and the southern part of the state. Mr. Holloway attended the state druggists convention in New Orleans.

Mrs. Charles E. Hope and two lovely children, interesting guests of Dr. and Mrs. Hope of Oak Ridge, were charming visitors in the city during the past week.

Mrs. Hope, who was born in London, English, has resided in Versailles, France, since her marriage to Mr. Hope and is enjoying her third visit to America.

On Thursday she was the luncheon guest of Mrs. B. M. McKoin and several delightful affairs of an informal nature were given in her honor during her brief visit in Monroe.

Mrs. Nathaniel Hurdle led yesterday for Memphis, Tenn., where she will visit friends for the next two weeks.

The Council of Social workers met Saturday at noon at the Presbyterian church for their regular monthly luncheon.

Mr. G. W. Simpson, president, presided and a comprehensive discussion of the work of the National Red Cross was made by Mrs. W. C. Holstein. Mrs. Holstein explained the relationship of all local chapters to the national organization and gave an interesting outline of the work accomplished by the Ouachita Parish Red Cross chapter.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. McReynolds and Mrs. Fred Coon are spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Venable in their country home near Alexandria.

The Willing Workers Sunday school class of the Church of the Nazarene met at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Douglas for a combined business meeting and a social Tuesday night. During the social hour refreshments were served to the following:

Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Crews, Misses Elizabeth Hayten, Edna Lambert, Doty Watts, Merl Sterns, Myrtis and Myrtle Bacle, Fay Yount, Louise Gardner, Ida Posey, Madeline Kelly, Lillian Hampton, Mildred Young, Mrs. Powell; Messrs. gram and gave an interesting outline of the work of that organization. Members of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout council will have charge of the program for the June meeting, which will be held at Camp Ki-Ro-La, June 15. An interesting program is expected at that time.

The Council of Social agencies is composed of a dozen or more organizations engaged in social work. Under the present plan, one of the organizations is assigned to have charge of the program each month. This group gives the others an idea of the work it is undertaking.

The Colony home demonstration club will sponsor a "cake walk" at the home of Mrs. Fred Huenefeld on the Rayville road, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

BONURA HITS 2 HOMERS AS CHISOX BEAT A'S AGAIN

FORMER PELICAN LEADS ATTACK ON MACK'S HURLERS

White Sox Chalk Up
Fourth Straight Win
14-10 Victory

CHICAGO, May 19.—(P)—Led by Zeke Bonura, freshman first baseman, who hit his season's seventh and eighth home runs, the White Sox fell on four Philadelphia pitchers for 15 hits and a 14 to 10 victory today to sweep the three-game series and extend their first winning streak of the year to four games.

Off to a good start when Manager Jimmy Dykes singled to score 3 runs in the first inning, the Sox faltered and the A's helped by Bob Johnson's seventh homer in the sixth inning, pulled up to a 5 to 5 tie at that point.

FRENCH NETTERS DEFEAT AUSTRIA

Borotra Arrives Late, But
In Time To Beat
Foes Easily

PARIS, May 19.—(P)—Jean Borotra, the beret-topped darling of the French tennis galleries who annually emerges from retirement to help out in Davis cup warfare, today almost cost the French a cup victory because he arrived late for the doubles matches with Austria.

Jean failed to show up at the scheduled time and Austria claimed default. When Borotra finally appeared, however, they withdrew their claim and the match proceeded. Borotra and his veteran partner, Jacques Brugnon, smashing out a 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over G. Von Metaxa and H. Artens.

The doubles triumph was the third straight victory in the series and clinched it for France. Christian Boususs and Andre Merlon won both singles matches yesterday.

France meets Germany, which drew a bye, in the second round of cup play in the European zone, June 8, 9 and 10.

Camp Morehouse Team Defeats Spencer, 6-5

BASTROP, May 19.—(Special)—"Camp Morehouse won a close game from Spencer here Friday by a score of 6-5."

"Morehouse took the lead in the first inning when Jefcoat singled to score Simpson. Spencer took a two-run lead in the sixth, but Morehouse came back in the same inning to score three runs and take a one-run lead. After Morehouse scored another run in the seventh, Spencer threatened to tie the score in the eighth when Pipes doubled to score W. B. Hale. With no men out Jefcoat relieved Langston and retired the side."

SHORT AND SNAPPY

Art Shires is doing his stuff for Texas league fans this season. He's the same old Art. Listen, "If I don't hit .400 I'll take down my hitting sign. The extra admissions I draw will warrant a raise in pay for me." ... Bruce Hayes, New Orleans scout, was in town a couple of days last week. Says Bruce: "Monroe has one of the best baseball diamonds in the minor leagues. It's a shame you don't have a club here." ... They're calling Don Heffner, the Yanks' rookie second baseman, the "Amazing Atom." ... Rabbit Maranville, Johnnie Evers and Max Bishop were little fellows, but they were amazing too. ... The Davenport, Iowa, stadium is built so close to the Mississippi river that some runs drop into the Big Muddy. ... Red Cross White Sox infielder, is ticketed for a trip to the minors. A couple of years ago several clubs were after the former Brown.

Esquire contains an excellent story on baseball players' superstitions. Babe Ruth, for instance, has a certain mate to warm up with, as long as he's hitting okay. If he gets into a slump, he changes warming-up partners. ... Kiki Cuyler costs the Cubs plenty. He breaks at least 50 bats per season. ... Now that the Athletics have Rabbit Warbler playing for them, Mr. Mack is said to have the best double play combination in the majors. Eric McNair is the other half. ... It's all right to take a dive in New York but the boxer who offends the dignity of the New York commission is in for it. Max Baer was recently suspended for being late at a commission meeting. ... The New Orleans Pelicans won't win the Southern flag this year. The league is much faster than in 1933. The Pelis will do well to finish in the first division.

WILDCATS STEP OUT

The announcement yesterday that Harold "Shorty" Oslin, Centenary's head halfback, had been hired to assist Henry Walden with Louisiana college's football squad indicates that the Wildcats also have become convinced that it's time for a new deal. Coach Walden told me of his plans a week and a half ago but he didn't want the story to "break" until everything was set. Henry is very optimistic. He has a good freshman squad coming up and some fine prospects will enter the Pineville school this fall. Louisiana college, like Louisiana Tech, is tired of mediocre football teams.

Oslin should be of great assistance to Walden. He knows how football should be played and there's no reason to doubt that he will be able to teach it. And his presence at Pineville should attract some excellent talent.

With both Louisiana Tech and Louisiana college stepping out in a football way, fans in this section will be offered a much improved gridiron program for the next several seasons.

OUACHITA NEEDS HELP

It's high time someone takes an interest in Ouachita junior college and helps along the athletic program out there. Ouachita is completing its third year and thus doesn't boast an imposing list of alumni. Therefore the help will have to come from local fans and civic leaders who have the interest of a local institution at heart.

President Colvert tells me that Ouachita will play intercollegiate basketball next season. The intramural program has been unusually successful and an excellent cage team can be recruited.

The junior college was criticized last fall when its football team played a CCC camp schedule, more or less. It came in for further criticism when an intramural football program was launched this spring, it being the consensus of opinion that football should be left to the older men and that college athletes should be spry enough to play baseball.

That, however, is beside the point. Ouachita's athletic program needs help, and if the college's teams are to succeed, it's up to Monroe to furnish that assistance.

A REFEREE'S RIGHT

A Friday fan asks if a boxing referee has the right to count a man out while he's hanging helpless on the ropes. The answer is yes. Many a boxer has been counted out on the ropes.

A referee has the right to stop a bout at any time and award a technical knockout without even counting.

It's easy to understand why a referee is given that authority. There's no use in running the risk of having a boy permanently injured by allowing a bout to continue when a boxer is "out on his feet."

TERRY'S TROUBLES

The recent swing through the west was something of a nightmare to Manager Bill Terry and his Giants. Apparently it affected Memphis Bill's playing. A Chicago baseball writer described a play in one of the Cubs' Giants game as follows: "Terry muffed, like the veriest sandlotter, a soft toss from Ryan that should have retired Warneke, but placed him instead, on first base, from which he traveled by easy stages, Gale's pass and Klein's down-the-foul-line double across the plate and into a victory that was nothing but stark reality. Thus, in a matter of a few moments, Terry, the wonder manager, ranged from a heluva hero into a pretty fair sort of a bum."

Mr. Terry after enjoying the breaks last year, is now learning how it feels when luck runs the other way.

A TENNIS COMPLAINT

Here's a letter relative to the city tennis tournament. The promoters would do well to consider this fan's complaint: "I noticed in a recent issue of The Monroe Morning World that the annual city tennis tournament is to be held this year on May twenty-sixth. This date calls to mind that none of the college students will have returned by then. Offhand I can name at least seven who would make competition very keen for those who are sponsoring the tournament. They are Cyril Yancey, Charles Stewart, Alvah Learned, Fred Fudickar, John Stewart, Louis Kusin and John Williams. Anyone of these stands a good chance of winning."

"It seems to me that if Monroe is to have a representative tennis champion, these boys should be considered and the date of the tournament put off until their return. That is the only fair thing to do."

"I would be much obliged to you if you will give this letter to the sponsors of the tournament. I am sure that I am not alone in my sentiments."

"Yours sincerely,
A TENNIS FAN."

NORTH CAROLINA WINS TRACK MEET

Tar Heels Run Away
With Southern Events
As Two Records Fall

DUKE STADIUM, DURHAM, N. C., May 19.—(P)—The Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina ran away with their second successive Southern conference track and field championship here today in a meet which, contrary to prediction saw only two new records set.

The Tar Heels scored 68 13-14 points, more than twice as many as Virginia's 24 5-14 which took second place. Maryland was third with 30, Duke had 27-7, N. C. State eight and V. M. I. five. The tenth conference school, V. P. I., did not enter.

In the field, Milan Zori of N. C. State sailed the discus to a new record and Ralston Legore of North Carolina did likewise with the javelin.

Zori's mark of 151 feet 7 inches bettered the record of 142 feet 9 inches set in 1932 by Jenkins of Florida when the "Gator" school was in the conference.

Legore's toss of the javelin was good for 211 feet 1 1-2 inches to beat his own two-year-old throw of 195 feet 3-5 inches.

GIANTS WIN FINAL FROM REDS, 6 TO 5

Disputed Home Run By Joe Moore Gives Champions Close Victory

NEW YORK, May 19.—(P)—The New York Giants closed their series with the Cincinnati Reds today with a 6 to 5 victory today.

giving the world champions two games to one.

The see-saw game was featured by five home runs, two by Chick Hafey of the Reds, and a protest that followed a circuit clout off the bat of Joe Moore, Giant outfielder, in the sixth inning.

The ball was deflected by a spectator as it was about to fall into the right field stands. Umpire Rigger ruled the hit was good for four bases, but the Reds claimed it was only good for two bases under the ground rules.

NORTH LOUISIANA ADJUSTER NAMED

T. S. Hickman To Look After Code Violations In This Section

Announcement was received here Saturday by S. H. McClary, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, of the appointment of T. S. Hickman as field adjuster for the national recovery administration in north Louisiana. In a letter to Mr. McClary, Mr. Hickman said he planned to visit Monroe within a short time.

Until the appointment of Mr. Hickman, various code authorities in north Louisiana, as well as in other sections of the state, had been instructed to report code violations to the field adjuster at New Orleans.

Violations of each code as it pertains to price regulation and fair competition are first handled by the local code committee for the respective industry and are reported to adjusters only if they cannot be adjusted satisfactorily by the code authority.

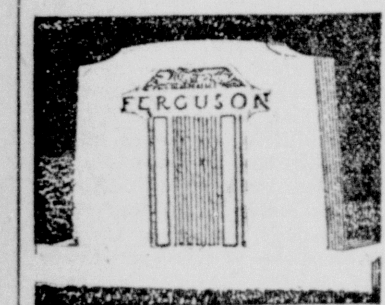

On the other hand, complaints of violations of maximum hour and minimum wage regulations are handled through the adjuster, so that the local committee will not know the name of the person making the complaint. When the adjuster receives a complaint he notifies the local committee, and an effort is made to determine whether or not there is a basis for the complaint. If an adjuster is not made within 10 days, the adjuster takes further steps.

Song Program Slated At Baptist Church Tonight

HOMER, La., May 19.—(Special)—Plans for one of the biggest "Dairy Day" celebrations ever held in Claiborne parish were underway here today with the announcement that prominent state agricultural officials would be present, that Barksdale Field fliers would stage an aerial show, and that the merchants of Homer were making plans for a bargain day in every type of merchandise.

The big day has been set for June 16 and is sponsored by the Homer Lions club.

Miss Mary Mims, state sociologist; Major J. C. Lee, dean of agricultural college, L. S. U.; E. W. Neasham, of the dairy extension department and D. T. Simons, of Fort Worth, Texas, representative of the American Jersey cattle club, have accepted invitations to speak on the day's program at the city hall.

A gala day of entertainment, music and dairy exhibits as well as speaking and the awarding of prizes to producers who register winning dairy products at the meet, are in store for all.

After the registration of visitors during the afternoon session a terrapin race will be sponsored by the American Legion. Band music, swimming and picture shows will be offered as entertainment for the guests.

SCHOOL NEWS

O. P. H. S.

As one of the closing events of the term at Ouachita parish high school, a play, "The Arrival of Reuben" was presented Friday morning by the sophomore class in the school auditorium. Plays had been given earlier in the term by the freshman, junior and senior classes.

The cast of characters for the play was as follows: Tom Curtis, a baseball hero, Chester DeCuir; Hal Burton and Jerry Shaw, Tom's chums, Bill Chappell and Sam Walker; Reuben Doolittle, Tom's country cousin, Bill Gattis; Prof. Notley, president of Blossmere college, Frank Smith; Major Hooper, Polly Hinton, Dora Acton and Alice Hall, senior co-eds, Anna Mae Hearn, Dorothy Bennett, Libby Haynes and Martha Hamilton; Maggie Flynn, jaintriss, Mildred Johnson. The place was Blossmere college and the time was a few weeks before commencement.

NEVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

The Junior Hi-Y met Thursday night in the Neville tower with Bobby O'Donnell presiding. Talks were made by Sackman Marx and Stanley Mintz, while entertainment was given by Johnny Terrell and Harry Fernandez.

A "lie telling contest" between Bobby Underwood and Bob Hanna was won by the latter.

A talk on the duties of a Junior Hi-Y member was given by Paul Neal, faculty advisor, for Albert Buckley and Guilford McClevey, new members of the club.

Carl Morgan, Matt Redmond and Richard Sackett were chosen to prepare the program for the next meeting.

HOMER

HOMER, La., May 19.—(Special)—The annual school awards of the American Legion here were presented to Margaret Ford and James Gladney at the graduation exercises of Homer high school Wednesday evening when 32 graduates received their diplomas.

Miss Ford also salutatorian of the class and young Gladney were selected by the faculty of the school as averaging highest in honor, scholarship, leadership and courage.

Frances Gladney was valedictorian.

HICO

HICO, La., May 19.—(Special)—The Hico high school is now operating on a "short day" schedule to accommodate students from farm homes, who would otherwise have to stop school to work their crops.

School now opens at 7 a. m. and dismisses at 12:30 p. m. This schedule has been customary here for the past few years and is usually instituted near the middle of spring when the students' labor is most needed on the farms.

LATEST EQUIPMENT AT LOCAL GARAGE

Monroe Automobile And Supply Company Of- fers Real Service

Even the most skilled and experienced mechanics are not magicians. They cannot tell what is wrong with a motor nor tune it to its highest efficiency by merely listening to it.

The Monroe Automobile & Supply Co., Inc., has eliminated all possibility of guesswork by installing the scientific Sun Motor Tester. With this instrument all electrical and mechanical units are checked scientifically and accurately. If your car is hard to start, stops in traffic, lacks power, pep or speed, uses excess gas, vibrates and runs rough, misses at either high or low speed, the Sun Motor Tester will quickly and accurately locate the trouble.

The Monroe Automobile & Supply Co., Inc., recently announced the installation of "Bee Line" front axle equipment, one of the most complete and accurate front axle and alignment machines on the market. It quickly and economically corrects shimmy, hard steering and tire wear. "Bee Line" accurately straightens and aligns front axles on all automobiles. No longer is it necessary to remove and heat the axle of your automobile or truck to properly straighten it.

The service department of the Monroe Automobile & Supply Co., Inc., local Dodge-Plymouth distributors, is now one of the finest and most completely equipped service departments in Louisiana. Only skilled, experienced mechanics are employed, and only genuine Dodge and Plymouth parts are used. Service is their motto and satisfaction their guarantee.

The problem of rendering satisfactory service to over one million Dodge and Plymouth owners, has been worked out by Dodge dealers from the standpoint of owners satisfaction. There are definite reasons why you can get better attention and for less money when serviced

MECHANICS WHO GUESS COST YOU MONEY

We know our stuff and have modern shop tools and equipment to work with.

This eliminates guesswork and saves you money.

A tune-up at regular intervals will prolong the life of your motor, and, at the same time, materially reduce the cost per mile of driving. The outlay for a scientific tune-up is so small that the saving in gas and oil generally pays for it in a very short time. We do the job scientifically with the finest equipment money can buy.

MANY FEATURES IN WESTINGHOUSE

Monroe Hardware Com- pany Lists Advantages Of Refrigerator

There are many, many reasons why housewives prefer Westinghouse electric refrigerators, but the Monroe Hardware company, local distributors of the famous Westinghouse line, has listed 32 of these important reasons.

Westinghouse refrigerator owners are invariably better satisfied and more loyal to Westinghouse. Many electric refrigerators have a few of the important advantages. A few refrigerators have many of them. But only Westinghouse combines them all.

That's why Westinghouse owners are always ready to say a good word for their refrigerator. It has been proved that housewives whose work has been made easier and less expensive by Westinghouse are better satisfied than owners of any other make. That's why an owner will tell you "You'll be happier with a Westinghouse."

The Monroe Hardware company, the store with the one hundred per cent stock, invites you to come in and let them demonstrate these definite reasons for Westinghouse popularity. Here are the 32 reasons why Westinghouse refrigerators make and keep friends:

1. Sparkling beauty.
2. Polished chromium fittings.
3. Handy-latch door opener.
4. Convenient buffer top.
5. Graceful broom-high legs.
6. Electric-lighted interior.
7. Acid-resisting interior.
8. Sanitary porcelain interior.
9. Micarta door trim.
10. Bulb-type door.
11. Flat-ribbed shelves.
12. Scientific shelf spacing.
13. Extra bottle space.
14. Selective temperature control.
15. Dual-automatic protection.
16. Economical defrosting.
17. Economical operating cycle.
18. Hermetically-sealed mechanism.
19. Mechanism oiled for life.
20. Permanently-oiled cooling fan.
21. Select-a-cube ice trays.
22. Triple-service dessert tray.
23. Extra ice cube capacity.
24. Non-splash defrosting tray.
25. Big, fast-freezing froster.
26. Thick, super-sealed insulation.
27. Welded all-steel cabinets.
28. Removable ice tray shelves.
29. Oversize storage capacity.
30. Lifetime quality finish.
31. Mechanism mounted in top.
32. Low operating cost.

Terms are reasonable and prices are no higher than ordinary makes. You're invited to inspect this fine new Westinghouse.

NEW HIGHLINE BEING ERRECTED

BERNICE, La., May 19.—(Special)—The Louisiana Power and Light company, with offices at Monroe, has undertaken to extend a highline out of Bernice to two miles north of town for the accommodation of several residences heretofore without the service. The work is being done by a crew of seven men and is expected to be completed in ten days.

Farmers throughout this vicinity are harvesting their oat crop, which is reported not an average yield but is heavily headed.

The ground is to be replanted in peas and June corn.

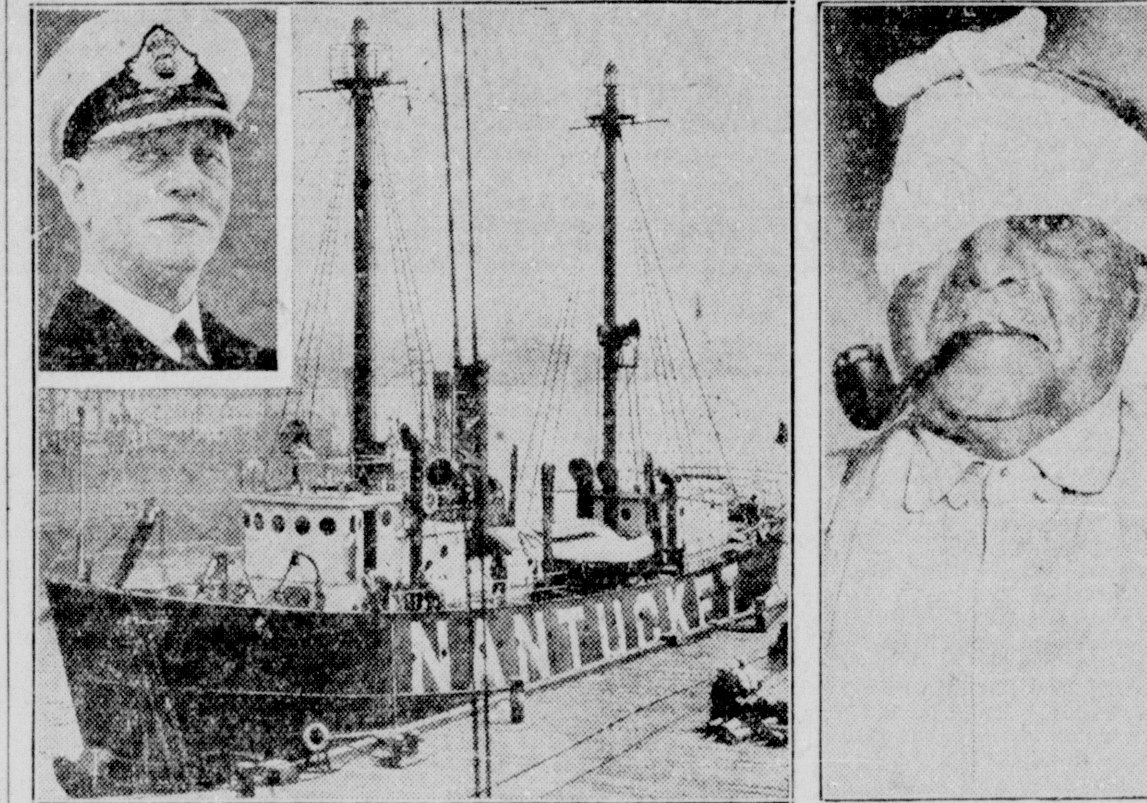

Cotton farms are also showing a marked progress. Many planters are already chopping their cotton, while others have not yet completed their planting.

A shortage of water in the Sequoia park area, California, resulted in an order curtailing its use in the Ash mountain area.

CHEVROLET HAS LOW-PRICED CAR

New Model Announced; Many Desirable Fea- tures Are Listed

Chevrolet has announced "the world's lowest priced six-cylinder car" with the introduction of the new improved 1934 Standard Six models, supplementing the Master Chevrolet models previously presented.

Two closed and two open car models comprise the new improved Standard line. They are the sport roadster, $490; phaeton, $520; coupe, $510; and two-door sedan, $520. The new cars, says the Chevrolet Motor company's announcement, thus list under any other six on the market, and $55 to $95 under corresponding models of the Master Chevrolets.

The new cars are replete with major improvements designed to achieve better performance, riding qualities, comfort and appearance. Both chassis and body have been completely redesigned in keeping with the latest advances in engineering and styling.

Roadability, and especially stability, have been enhanced through the adoption of a wider chassis frame and more widely spaced leaf springs front and rear, in conjunction with a longer front axle and increased tread of the front wheels. These chassis improvements have permitted the use of big, roomy bodies having maximum width and ample leg room.

In the power plant, smoothness, economy and flexibility have been improved through a thorough revision of the inlet and exhaust systems, with higher compression, a refined valve and tappet mechanism, including a redesigned camshaft.

The new models share with the Master series such appearance features as sleek, flowing lines, deep fenders hugging the tires, long hood with horizontal louvers, and steeply inclined radiator grille. Numerous interior refinements similarly enhance the style and finish of the passenger compartments.

The exterior has been generally redesigned to add to style and utility. Deep front fenders, extending far over the tires, conceal unsightly chassis parts, with only a shallow "valley" remaining between fenders and hood. Front fenders are formed to extend to the center of the car under the radiator, eliminating the separate radiator splash guard. Fender skirts have been given sharp, graceful contours, making them appear to fit closely to the tires. Edges of the fenders have turned in flanges, for extra stiffness.

The re-styled front-end ensemble includes new designs for the hood and radiator grille. The hood is unusually long, and has three horizontal louvers. Front fenders, radiator and head lamps are supported as a unit on a stabilized mounting of improved design, insulated from the

INSPECTION URGED FOR CAR'S SAFETY

Brakes And Tires Should Be Gone Over To Pre- vent Accidents

In reconditioning your car for the spring and summer driving campaign, it is to be hoped that you did not stop with the engine, the brakes, the lights. Of course, these must be in perfect shape, but perhaps you overlooked a vital safety feature in every automobile—the tires. This warning was given yesterday by the Downes Brokerage, Inc., with offices in the Ouachita bank building.

While your brakes stop the wheels, it is the tires that stop the car. That fact is being emphasized in this day of high speed and increased horsepower. If you go fast, you must stop quickly. And that is where a good tire comes in.

Figures, obtained by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, indicate that three-fourths of the cars inspected in a number of states last year had dangerous defects. Nearly 48 per cent of these defective cars were equipped with tires that were either poor or only in fair condition. A poor, even a fair tire, is liable to a puncture or blowout, and everyone knows what that means at high speeds.

All drivers have noticed the abnormal number of blowouts and punctures during the first warm days. The heat has raised the air pressure and a worn tire has blown out or punctured on a sharp obstruction or severe bump. During the winter months the dampness has seeped in through the cuts and bruises produced by thousands of miles of driving. This dampness has decayed the rubber and weakened the tire.

There were 7,120 accidents last year due to punctures or blowouts. In 480 of these accidents persons were killed and there were 27,160 skidding accidents in which 1,450 persons were killed and 30,200 injured.

Look your tires over carefully, and if they are not up to standard replace them!

O. P. H. S. SENIORS COMPLETE TESTS

Final Examinations Are Held; School Duties
Almost Ended

The more than 200 seniors at Ouachita parish high school who expect to graduate at exercises to be held on the night of June 1, at Neville high school auditorium, finished their final examinations during the week just ended and will have no further school duties between now and the graduation date, except for certain appointments and class activities, Jack Hayes, principal, said Saturday.

Teachers are now engaged in grading papers. It is expected that all grades will be returned by Monday and that shortly after that time announcement of the honor graduates will be made. As is customary in high schools, honor graduates are selected entirely on the basis of their scholastic records for the four years. At Ouachita parish junior college a different system is employed, students electing one honor graduate and the faculty another from the 10 having the highest grades.

Practically the only announcements that have been made concerning graduation ceremonies are those of the honor graduates and of the principal speaker, Mr. Hayes said a speaker for the graduation exercises probably would be announced within the next few days.

Rev. E. F. Hayward, pastor of Grace Episcopal church, has been selected to deliver the baccalaureate sermon, which will be given on May 27 at the parish high school auditorium.

D. F. McLaurin of Ruston is shown above, with an enlarged reproduction of a gold medal which was presented to him Friday night, May 18, as a feature of a banquet program held by the staff of The Tech Talk, Louisiana Tech newspaper. The medal is awarded annually by the Omega Kappa social fraternity at Tech, in recognition of the "best work on The Tech Talk." McLaurin has been sports editor of The Tech Talk for three years, and is serving several papers, including the Monroe Morning World, as a Ruston correspondent. Besides being a journalist he is an experienced printer.

D. F. McLaurin Awarded
Medal For Meritorious Service

RUSTON, La., May 19.—(Special)—In token of student newspaper service, several gifts were presented at a banquet Friday night for members of the Tech Talk staff of Louisiana Tech, marking the end of the school year's journalistic activities for the college students here.

One student was given a medal, another a box of candy, one an ornamental paper weight, seven students cards of membership in the Tech Press club, and all were given food—to characterize the evening as an occasion of thanks and giving. Following the dinner, the guests attended a local theater.

A highlight of the banquet was the presentation of the Omega Kappa journalism medal awarded for meritorious work on the Tech Talk. D. F. McLaurin of Ruston received the medal. The award is a gold watch chain designed in the shape of a lighthouse.

In recognition of her service as society editor of the Tech Talk this year, Mona Gill of Ruston was given a box of candy.

James Wyche of Haughton, who has just completed his fourth year in the circulation department of the Tech Talk, was given a paper weight in honor of his work.

Card of membership in the Tech Press club were presented to the seven new members of the club as follows: Frank W. Buckley, Mooringsport; A. E. Wilder, Jr., Ruston; F. P. Love, Linville; Jesse H. Rabb, Farmerville; I. A. Sandefer, Rocky Mount; Lydia Thornton, Winnfield, and E. Ford Lowe, Minden.

Edwin E. Slaton of Sibley was toastmaster at the banquet.

COURT OF HONOR HELD IN MONROE

200 Scouts Attend Program; Medal Given To Outstanding Youth

The court of honor for the central district of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout council was held Friday night at the Ouachita parish high school auditorium with approximately 200 scouts in attendance.

One of the outstanding features of the program was the presentation of a medal to James Gremillion of troop one as the scout who made the greatest contribution to the success of his troop during the past year, not only in scoutcraft advancement but by living up to the scout oath and laws and by his general scout-like conduct.

The medal was presented by Mrs. Frank X. Shaughnessy, widow of F. X. Shaughnessy, first scoutmaster of troop one. Presentation of the award, to be known as the "Troop One Shaughnessy Memorial medal," hereafter will be an annual event.

Rev. M. R. Gremillion is the present scoutmaster of troop one.

History Of Monroe Is Related In Pamphlets

A pamphlet entitled, "A History of Monroe," issued by the Chamber of Commerce, came off the press Saturday and was delivered to S. H. Mc-

Clary, Chamber of Commerce secretary. Mr. McClary said that 1,000 of the pamphlets were printed and that most of them would be distributed in advertising matter to be sent out by the organization.

One portion of the booklet gives the most accurate history available on the early settlement of Monroe, recounting the story of the arrival of Don Juan Filhiol and other interesting historical events. Another portion gives the business and industrial history of the city.

MRS. M'REE DECLARES RENT NOT MENTIONED

In a special news dispatch from Lake Providence, carried in the Monroe newspapers on May 17, telling of the conviction of Chris McGinnis on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Robert McRee on April 3, it was stated that the shooting resulted from an argument over rent money. In a letter to the World Saturday, Mrs. Mc-

Ree said that the matter of rent was not mentioned but that the argument was over a broken sewerage line which McGinnis had refused to repair in a residence owned by him and occupied by the McRees.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Japanese Expansion

By J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

AT THE CLOSE OF THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR (1905) JAPAN FACED THE PROBLEM OF EXPANSION. HER POPULATION HAD GREATLY INCREASED AND WAS BECOMING CONGESTED. THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE LABORERS MIGRATED TO CALIFORNIA AND CANADA. -- JAPAN LOOKED AROUND FOR SOME TERRITORY INTO WHICH SHE MIGHT OVERFLOW.

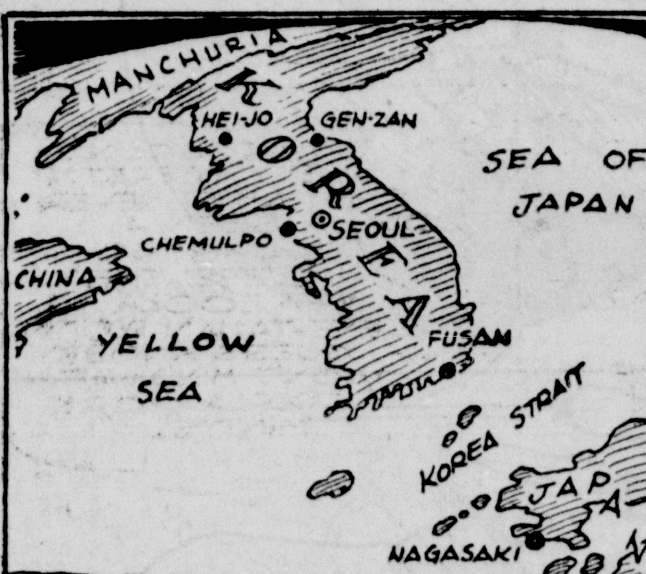

FEARING THAT THE INFUX OF CHEAP JAPANESE LABOR WOULD SUBJECT THEIR OWN WORKERS TO UNFAIR COMPETITION, THE UNITED STATES, CANADA AND AUSTRALIA CONSIDERED BARRING IMMIGRATION FROM JAPAN. JAPAN RECOGNIZED THE RIGHT OF ANY NATION TO EXCLUDE IMMIGRANTS, BUT DID NOT WISH HER PEOPLE TO BE DISCRIMINATED AGAINST.

HAPPILY, THIS DELICATE QUESTION WAS SOLVED (1907) BY THE FAMOUS "GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT" BETWEEN WASHINGTON AND TOKYO, BY WHICH JAPAN VOLUNTARILY AGREED NOT TO PERMIT HER LABORERS TO MIGRATE TO AMERICA.

WITH THESE OUTLETS CLOSED, JAPAN FACED IN ANOTHER DIRECTION, TO THE WEST, AND POURED HER EMIGRANTS AND CAPITAL INTO THE MAINLAND OF ASIA, INTO KOREA AND SOUTH MANCHURIA.

KOREA, JAPAN'S NEAREST NEIGHBOR, WAS A WEAK AND BACKWARD KINGDOM. JAPAN FEARED THAT RUSSIA MIGHT SOMEDAY COME TO CONTROL KOREA, WITH THE RESULT THAT ANOTHER AVENUE FOR JAPANESE EMIGRATION AND ENTERPRISE WOULD BE CLOSED.

IN 1904 JAPAN AND KOREA HAD MADE A TREATY. JAPAN AGREED TO GUARANTEE KOREA'S INDEPENDENCE. KOREA PROMISED TO MAKE CERTAIN GOVERNMENTAL REFORMS SUGGESTED BY JAPAN. BUT THE JAPANESE HAD A HARD TIME "REGENERATING" KOREA AND IN 1905 DECIDED TO HANDLE KOREA'S FOREIGN AFFAIRS THEMSELVES.

THE KOREANS RESENTED THIS. THERE WAS A LOT OF TROUBLE, WHICH CULMINATED (1909) IN THE ASSASSINATION OF PRINCE ITO, THE JAPANESE RESIDENT-GENERAL, BY A KOREAN. STILL HAUNTED BY THE RUSSIAN BUGABOO, JAPAN MADE A DRASTIC MOVE.

IN THE SUMMER OF 1910 KOREA WAS MADE A PART OF JAPAN UNDER A MILITARY GOVERNMENT. THE LAND WAS RENAMED CHOSUN. THE ANNEXATION OF KOREA GAVE THE ISLAND EMPIRE OF THE MIKADO A FIRM FOOT-HOLD ON THE CONTINENT OF ASIA.

SERGEANT POP RHOADES, hangar chief of Squadron Eight, paused in the act of raising a plug of tobacco to his lips and cocked his grizzled head skyward. His critical eye followed the precipitous descent of a silver-winged Vought, which was slipping in with moaning wires toward the edge of the landing field. At the instant when impact with the earth seemed inevitable the swooping craft righted itself, fish-tailed once to each side, and then settled gracefully upon the ground. Pop sighed and shook his head.

"Fair enough, I guess," he commented mournfully to a nearby mechanic. "But they'll never be like the old-timers, Whitey. Back in '17, when only one or two knew much about stuntin', an' a tailspin was the place to give up an' say your prayers, the Leathernecks was a lot dizzier outfit. I was meech for the dizziest of 'em all, a bird maybe you've heard me mention as Benny the Mad. I was detailed with him for a year at Pensacola, while he was doin' special duty as test pilot for the Navy. By the time I'd been with him three months I began wishin' I'd been sent over to the trenches, where I might've had a chance."

Whitey sat up with sudden interest.

"Say, you don't mean the guy that got in Dutch flyin' an H-boat across Florida?" he demanded quickly. "Seems to me I've heard something about him."

Pop chuckled, half to himself. "That's him," he assented amiably. "I was along on that hop — fact is, that's when my hair began to turn gray. It's a wonder it ain't white."

"He must 'a been looney, all right," observed Whitey. "Those flyin' coffins was bad enough with water under 'em, but hoppin' over dry land—Lord! What if his motor'd ever cut out?"

"That's just what I was thinkin' all the time," said Pop. "I s'pose he'd have made it somehow. That boy wasn't crazy — he knew what he was doin' ever second he was in the air. He made a mighty good reason for cuttin' over the State that way. That was a long time ago. I guess there ain't any reason I can't tell you about it now."

"WE WAS on a speed run from Pensacola to Hampton Roads, usin' a special H-boat the riggin' shop had just turned out for some kind of tests. She had extra tanks in her, an' the idea was to make one jump of it, if possible. Somebody in Washington wanted to know how long it'd take to rush a bunch of 'ships' up the coast, I reckon. We was goin' to shoot down around the boat, past Key West, which was the reg'lar route."

"We'd been out of Pensacola an hour or two an' was beatin' our schedule when the blamed fan pump went bad. Benny made a quick landin' in a little bayou an' run up onto the beach by a small place named Cleardale. We got the pump fixed in a jiffy an' was all set to go when Benny spied a sign readin' 'Southern Waffles and Honey.'"

"Rhoades," he says to me, 'lets eat.' That's another thing about him—he was always hungry. That lanky frame of his must have been hollow. Well, a few minutes later we are puttin' down some prize waffles, dished out by a nice little old lady who looks like she ought to be settin' in her parlor somewhere 'stead of runnin' a hash house. She's kind of friendly, an' after a bit Benny gets to talkin' to her. She's just tellin' him about some kind of hard luck she's run foul of, when I see some kids climbin' all over the ship, an' decide I'd better go down an' chase 'em off. Pretty soon Benny comes moseyin' along like he's on a furlough, stoppin' to talk to a guy fishin' off the dock, an' here we are s'posed to be down around Tampa by now."

"Rhoades," he remarks, with a grin which don't mean any good to somebody, 'do you object to impersonating Providence for an hour or two?'"

"Not havin' tried it, I can't say," I tell him, kind of cautious. "But what about our gettin' to Norfolk, sir? They'll be lookin' for us down at Key West pretty soon."

"I've figured that out," he says. "And I'll see you don't get into trouble. Now here's all you have to know. My name is Thompson and yours is Smith for the rest of the day. I'll call you Smitty for short. We're civilians, looking for a good place to start a passenger business. We couldn't get by with it, except that they rushed this test so much there wasn't time to put any insignia on the ship."

"I WAS wishin' to myself they'd taken time, but it was too late. With me still tryin' to dope it out, Benny swings out into the gulf an' cuts a big circle, headin' back in like we was comin' from the east. This time we landed at a cute little place called Dreamland-by-the-Sea. Benny leaves me in the ship and disappears for a spell. When he comes back there's a walkin' advertisement of the beef trust with him—one of these fat, puffy guys with a shiny eye an' a smooth line of chatter, the kind you feel like pokin' in the jaw right off, on general principles."

"His name's Hooper, it turns out, an' he's the main squeeze in this Dreamland-by-the-Sea, bein' president of the company runnin' the place. There's a photographer trailin' along, an' in a few minutes I gather that Benny has been talkin' the Beef Trust into lendin' his handsome mug for some pictures taken in the ship. The idea bein', so Benny says, to give 'em to the newspapers, all of which will boost the joy-ridin' business we are aimin' to start. He puts it over smooth as silk, explainin' it's to the mutual advantage of all parties, advertisin' the town as well as us."

"By now I've got a notion as to what's comin', but I'm still in the dark as to the why an' wherefore. The Beef Trust takes a slant at the ship, which is settin' with her tail up on the beach an' a line runnin' from a post to one of the struts. Seein' all is secure an' safe, he follows Benny into the pilot's cockpit like an admiral boardin' the flagship. Maybe he'd been less breezy if he'd know that line was only just wrapped around the strut, as per Benny's orders."

"The propeller should be burnin'," he says, sort of thoughtful. "Otherwise it won't look real. Smitty, twist her tail."

"The Beef Trust opens his mouth to holler, but I don't waste any time an' the Liberty drowns him out. I can feel the ship slide down the beach three or four feet before Benny throttles her. So does the Beef Trust."

"Please be careful," he stutters, grabbin' hold of the seat. "Sudden motion like that affects me."

"You don't say," remarks Benny, interested. Then he looks back at the camera. "All ready?" he inquires."

"The man nods his head an' the Beef Trust smiles kind of sick, like somethin' was hurtin' him."

"Shoot!" says Benny, an' with that hell breaks loose, everything happenin' at once. For one, he gives her the gun an' starts a young sandstorm which blows the innocent bystanders half way uptown. The Beef Trust stands up like he's goin' to jump out, but he sits down a sight faster when the old bus jerks clear from the beach an' starts makin' knots. The jerk mighty near sends me overboard, on account of payin' too much attention to a couple of dames which is havin' trouble with the propeller blast."

"The Beef Trust by now is a sort of muddy yellow, an' is tryin' to dig down where he can't see the water droppin' out from under. Benny is stickin' her nose up for altitude, an' from the look he's got I know it's time to look around for somethin' to hang onto. It's one time I'm wishin' they'd leave the belts in these boats. But I get a tight hold on the inside brace wires an' hope for the best."

"We was about five thousand feet when the cyclone struck, speakin' figuratively. First comes a bunch of dizzy zooms, an' I start wishin' I'd gone easier on the waffles. Then some flipper turns, with the wings pointin' direct at terra firmer, an' side-slips to top 'em off. That was the beginnin'. Without any more warnin' Benny slaps her nose down into a dive an' then up into a split-S—an' for a second of two I'm danglin' sorta in mid-air, hopin' the Beef Trust'll fall some other direction if he drops out. Benny pulls four or five of these, one after another, an' some wingovers, an' a lot more stuff — the Lord knows what you'd call it."

"DURIN' a second when the ship is flyin' level I look back and see Benny closin' the cut-off to the motor. The Beef Trust don't catch it—in fact, he ain't seein' much of anything. Benny grins at me an' I try to grin back, but my face is froze in one expression, an' it ain't grinnin'. Just then the gas runs out of the line and the Liberty begins to sputter."

"That wakes up the Beef Trust. I guess he's one of these guys that thinks you're gone when your motor cuts out. Benny is puttin' on a great exhibition of a man scared out of his boots, yankin' in the wheel, kickin' the rudder, an' in gen'ral havin' as much fun as a monkey with a rubber band. Right in the middle of the quiet that comes when the motor quit he throws up his hands an' lets out a blood-curdlin' whoop."

"We're done for, men," he shouts, real dramatic, 'the rudder wires are broken.' "Then he rolls the wheel half around, an' from a stall we're off into a ship at about one hundred per. The side wind is about blowin' me out of the cockpit, an' I'm hopin' that Benny ain't made a mistake, while the Beef Trust is passed out with his eyes glazed an' starin'. Just as I'm closin' my eyes and hopin' it'll be over quick, Benny works a miracle an' sets the old bus down on the water as gentle as a guy carryin' a bad egg."

"When I get my breath I see we're in a little cove which I figure is somewhere between Cleardale an' Dreamland-by-the-Sea, though there ain't any sign of human habitation. It looks like we're goin' to need a pull-motor to bring back the Beef Trust, but after sev'ral groans he opens his eyes. At first he's sure he's dead, but when he finds out he's still clutterin' up the earth he begins bawlin' out Benny, not even bein' grateful for livin'."

"Benny don't even look at the boat, but keeps on pumpin'." "Mr. Hooper," he remarks, 'this plane has never been towed in from a flight. Furthermore, Benny goes on, 'it is not going to be towed in if I can help it. I'm going to fly back—it's a matter of pride with me.'"

BENNY THE MAD

By Donald Edward Keyhoe

"You dirty crook!" he wheezes. "I'll have you arrested for abduction. You tried to murder me—I'll teach you—"

"Just then he discovers his whereabouts an' decides it's no place to be teachin' anything. Benny gives him a hard look."

"You ought to be thankful you're alive," he tells him. "When that line parted back there, I had to take off to keep from losing control of the plane. That was just an ordinary hop, except when the motor stopped and the controls jammed. I only hope our return will be as successful."

"Back of the Beef Trust he slips me a wink as a signal to talk up."

"Think it'll be safe?" I says, dubious. "Those wires ain't in good shape, an' don't forget that cracked strut, where you smack-ed into the dock the other day. If that strut ever breaks clear through the whole wing is goin' with it."

"Benny gets red, for I'm mixin' truth with fiction now. Course it was a different ship, but 'twas n't a week since he'd knocked a bus into a cocked hat tryin' to zoom between a couple of coal

"Take me off of here," he let out at the top of his voice. "Hurry up—I'll give you fifty dollars."

"He says it without gulpin', so he's desperate, all right. But the cox'n shakes his head."

"Have to talk to Mrs. Allison," he says, noddin' at the old lady. "Boat's hers the rest of the day. Hired it till night."

"And I'm afraid it's impossible," cuts in the old lady, lookin' the Beef Trust up an' down. "I don't care for any other passengers."

"I'll make it a hundred," he Think what you could do with five hundred dollars."

"I don't care for your company," she hands him right back. "And if I remember right, it was just five hundred dollars you refused to take as my last payment on the bungalow and lot I was buying. Perhaps you have forgotten, you have so many similar matters to handle, but you said you had never intimated I was to have an extension."

"ONE minute," interrupts Benny. "Smitty, while we're waiting, look over those control wires. See if you can find anything wrong with them."

"The letter you received must have been written by some ir-sold to the hotel. I can't make any changes now. It's not—"

"Three minutes," chimes in Benny, like the referee at a fight. "See if that bow anchor is secured, Smitty. I don't want anything bouncing out if we make any tight turns."

"Those are my terms," pronounces the old lady. "If you're not interested we'll be going on." "I can't make any arrangements out here—I haven't any records or anything," says the Beef Trust, beginnin' to weaken. "Let me get on board and we can settle things later."

"You don't put one foot on this boat until they're all settled," she answers. "My friend here, Mr. Stickney, happens to be a lawyer and also a notary. He can make any arrangements you wish."

"Yes," draws the bird she calls Stickney, startin' to rummage around in his pockets, "I'm quite at your service. Fact is, I always carry a few blank contracts and deeds around with me—never know when I'll need them, just like today. And Mrs. Allison can give us a complete description of the property from her first note. I believe you have it with you, Mrs. Allison?"

THE Beef Trust gets purple as a boiled lobster.

"It's a frame-up," he howls. "You're conspiring to rob me—I won't stand for it."

"Then you don't care to sign?" asks Stickney, lookin' up from the deed he's workin' on. It's his opinion he's only pretendin' to fill it in, an' that it's all set for the Beef Trust to put down his John Henry."

"Four minutes," Benny says, before the Beef Trust can answer him. "Give her a priming shot, Smitty, so she'll start quickly."

"Sure," I states, climbin' up on the wing. "But I'm ridin' back there with you this time; one thing, there ain't enough to hang onto up front, an' what's more, in case we crack up I ain't cravin' to be in the end that hits first. I've seen too many of 'em scooped up out of bow cockpits."

"All right, we'll put Mr. Hooper up there," assents Benny, cheerful. "It may make the ship a little nose-heavy, but I guess I can keep it from diving."

"The Beef Trust don't resemble a camel much, but that's the last straw as far as he's concerned."

"I'll sign," he groans, like it's sendin' him to an early grave. "Bring your boat in."

"Also countersign this letter purporting to give Mrs. Allison her extension," purrs Stickney, handin' the papers over the side as I fend off the boat. "As the time won't be up till next week that will nicely eliminate any possible chance of trouble."

"The Beef Trust hesitates a second. Right away Benny reaches down for the switch."

"Five minutes," he clicks out, like a man meanin' business. "Let's go, Smitty."

"The Beef Trust is signed an' scramblin' for the boat before I can grab the crank, only he's in such a hurry his foot slips an' the next second there's a high tide sweepin' inland. The cox'n an' Stickney hauls him into the stern-sheets, spoutin' like a whale. The old lady turns around to look at Benny. Her lips is tremblin' an' she ain't decided whether she's goin' to laugh or cry. Benny just smiles an' waves his hand, addin' a signal to keep mum. Then the boat shoves off, an' that's that."

In a minute Benny glances up at me.

"Rhoades," he says, 'plenty of people call me a damned fool, and they say there's a special Providence taking care of fools, so I'm going to take a chance. I'm going straight across Florida so I won't be late at Hampton Roads and have to report this. If they miss me at Key West I'll tell them we were above the clouds when we went by. But I'm not asking you to go with me—it isn't fair, so I'll drop you near a railroad and you can meet me at Norfolk. I'll frame some story.'"

"No, sir," I says, "I'm stickin' with the ship," though to tell the truth I never expected to feel water under that bus again. Hanged if we didn't make it, though, an' nobody'd ever got wise if it hadn't been for one thing. We made up so much time cuttin' across that we showed up six hours sooner'n we could've got there the reg'lar way, runnin' wide open. Even Benny's reputation wouldn't stand that, so he had to tell 'em about the short cut."

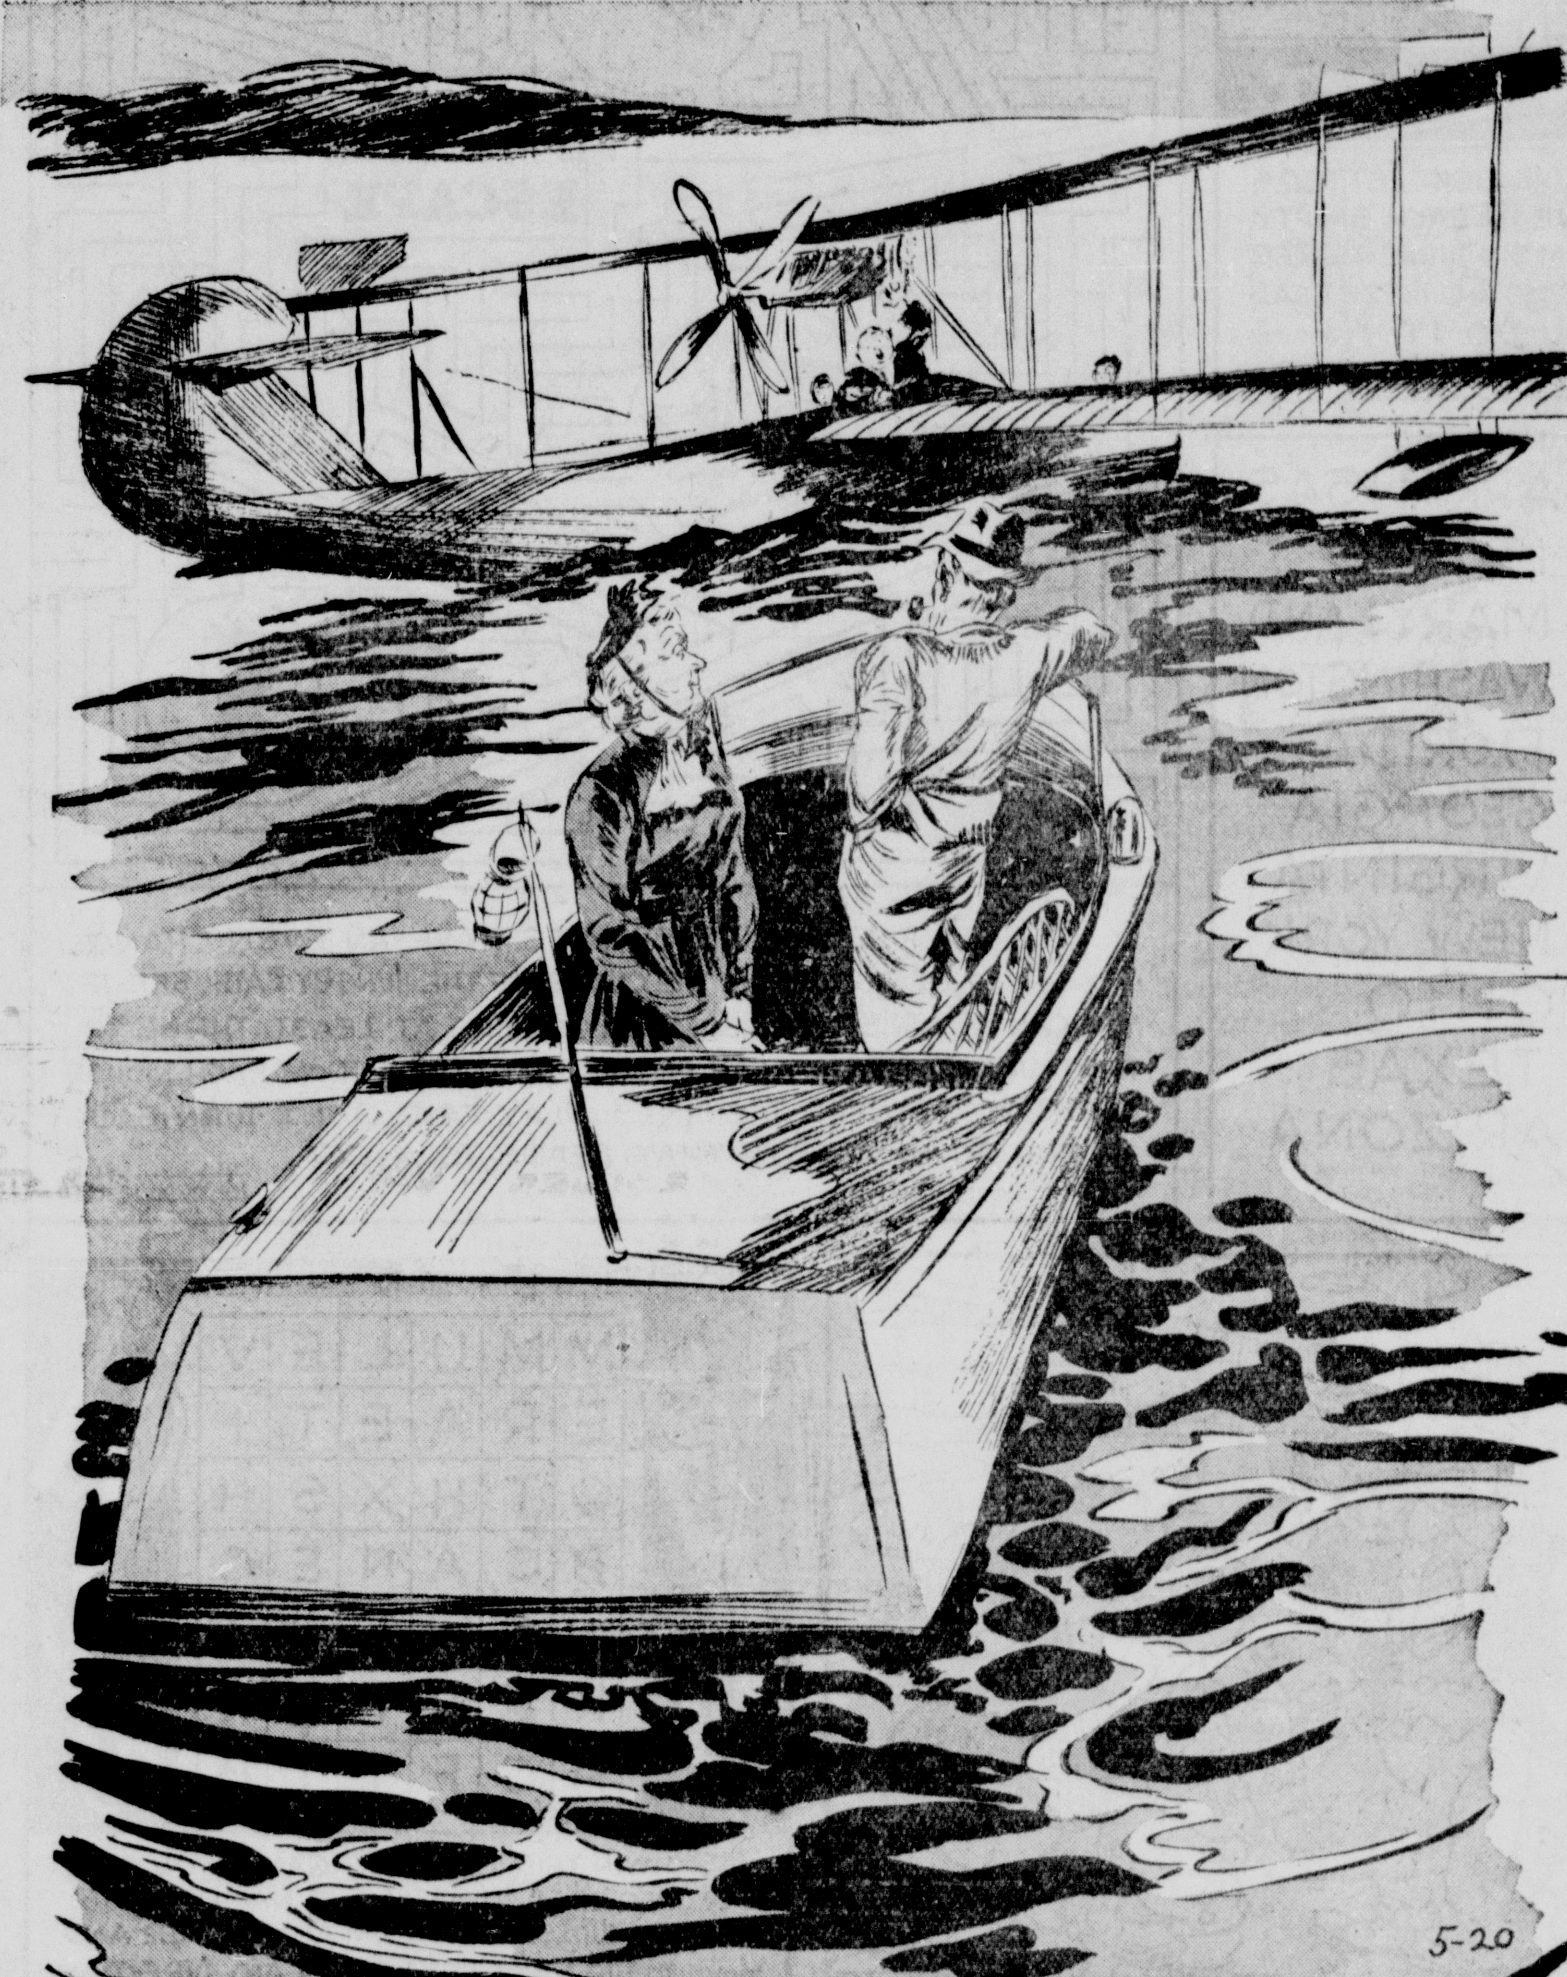

POP halted his narrative and stroked his chin reminiscently.

"What did he get out of it?" demanded Whitey, impatiently. "Nothin' but his nickname an' a lot of publicity," replied Pop with a grin. "When they got ready to give him a court they found out his orders read 'by the shortest possible route,' an' as they wasn't any regulations then against makin' cross-country hops in seaplanes, they couldn't do anything to him."

"What's he doin' now?" asked Whitey.

"Flyin' amphibians for the Navy," said Pop. "Those busses that'll land on ground an' water both, you know. That's the only way headquarters could figure to keep him from breakin' his neck."

(Copyright 1934 The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

"You mustn't harbor a grudge, Mrs. Allison," he wails. "I'll give you five hundred dollars."

THE Beef Trust's jaw drops on that one. It's about half a minute before he can talk. "You—you mean we're going back in this?" he yelps, wavin' his arms around. "When we just barely escaped with our lives? You're insane—we'll all be killed."

"Oh, I guess the control wires are all right now," says Benny. "And I think with a little work we can start the motor again, an' with that he commences pumpin' some gas up into the gravity tank."

"You can't do it!" shrieks the Beef Trust, poundin' his fist against the hull. "It's unlawful, forcing me to go with you this way—"

"No one is forcing you to do anything," replies Benny, pretty sharp. "If you want to swim ashore, go ahead. I can't stay here and wait to drift in."

"The Beef Trust is about to say somethin' but he stops and stares wild-eyed toward the shore."

"Here comes a boat," he says, his face lightin' up like a full moon. "Now we can get towed in and everything will be all right."

"Benny don't even look at the boat, but keeps on pumpin'." "Mr. Hooper," he remarks, 'this plane has never been towed in from a flight. Furthermore, Benny goes on, 'it is not going to be towed in if I can help it. I'm going to fly back—it's a matter of pride with me.'" docks that wasn't quite wide enough."

"Smitty," he comes back, with a glare I ain't sure he don't mean, "if you're afraid to fly with me, you can get out and swim, too. There's only been one man killed flying with me, and that was his own fault."

"The Beef Trust gets a sick look at this, an' just to cheer him up I slip back an' whisper to him while Benny is reachin' down for the switch."

"Don't rile Thompson up," I warns him. "If he gets to thinkin' about that bird who got bumped off we're gone. He's been queen ever since then, an' sometimes he gets the idea of makin' that hop over again—the guy fell out while the plane was upside down."

"God help me!" yells the Beef Trust standin' up an' shakin' all over. "I've got to get out of here—I can't stand this any longer. I'm going crazy."

"HE STARTS shoutin' at the boat, which is by now pretty close. There's two men an' a woman in it, an' I'm flabbergasted to see the woman is the old lady from the waffle place, and the cox'n is the guy who was fishin' on the dock. I smell a rat right off that this ain't no accident but I can't dope it out. When the Beef Trust sees the old lady, he stops yellin' for a second and stares. Then he starts yellin' at the cox'n."

means like it's cuttin' off an arm."

"You are wasting your time, Mr. Hooper," she tells him, chilly as September Morn. "I remember you told me that once, when I came to see you about the mistake in my delayed payment. If you offered me a thousand dollars I wouldn't let you in this boat."

"Benny takes a hand then. 'I've given you a chance to get off,' he says to the Beef Trust, 'but I can't wait any longer. Sit down here so I can see where I'm going when I start.'"

"No! No! NO!" screams the Beef Trust, like a soprano hittin' high C. "Give me a few minutes—I'll pay you to wait—"

"None of that!" says Benny, lookin' sore all of a sudden. "I don't want any of your money, and I'm not keeping you here against your will. But I'm not going to fool my time away. I'll give you exactly five minutes. If you aren't off then, you're going back with me."

"The Beef Trust begins pleadin' with the old lady to let him on board. If there'd been a place big enough he'd have been down on his knees. "You mustn't harbor a grudge, Mrs. Allison," he wails, wringin' his fat hands. "It was a matter of business—an unfortunate affair, I know. I'll give you five hundred dollars—you needn't even put me ashore. I'll wait until you're ready to go."

responsible person," explains the Beef Trust, moppin' his forehead. "It wasn't even on company stationery, you remember. If I had intended for you to have an extension I'd have made out a new note, I assure you."

"You needn't," she tells him. "I've heard it already, and I understand perfectly. I am only angry with myself for being so foolish."

"Two minutes," remarks Benny, chokin' off a yawn. "What did you find, Smitty?"

"Flipper wire's blame near sawed in two," I says, solemn. "Only two strands left. One good jerk and we're finished."

"It's nothing," he answers, shruggin' his shoulders. "I've often flown on one. We'll chance it."

"Standin' back of the Beef Trust, I can see what's left of his collar wilt down into his shirt. He makes a stranglin' noise in his throat an' then goes after the old lady again, wilder'n ever."

"What will you take?" he says, an' he's gettin' hoarse from yellin'. "Don't be unreasonable, Mrs. Allison."

"All right," she snaps, "I'll be quite reasonable. I'll take just what belongs to me—a deed to that property. And to make it safe, I'll give you my check for the five hundred, plus interest to date."

"You're cra— what you ask is impossible," sputters the Beef Trust. "The property is all but

DICK TRACY

SINCE J. SCOTLAND BUMPSTED, OF THE EUROPEAN SECRET POLICE, ARRIVED IN TOWN, TRACY HAS BEEN MORE THAN BUSY SHOWING THE FOREIGN DETECTIVE AROUND AND EXPLAINING AMERICAN WAYS AND METHODS OF POLICE PROCEDURE...

JUNIOR AND I ARE TAKING HIM TO VISIT THE STATE PENITENTIARY, MRS. BUMPSTED. HE WANTS TO SEE ONE OF OUR AMERICAN PENAL INSTITUTIONS AND SOME OF THE FAMOUS GANGSTERS THAT HAVE BEEN PUT BEHIND BARS LATELY.

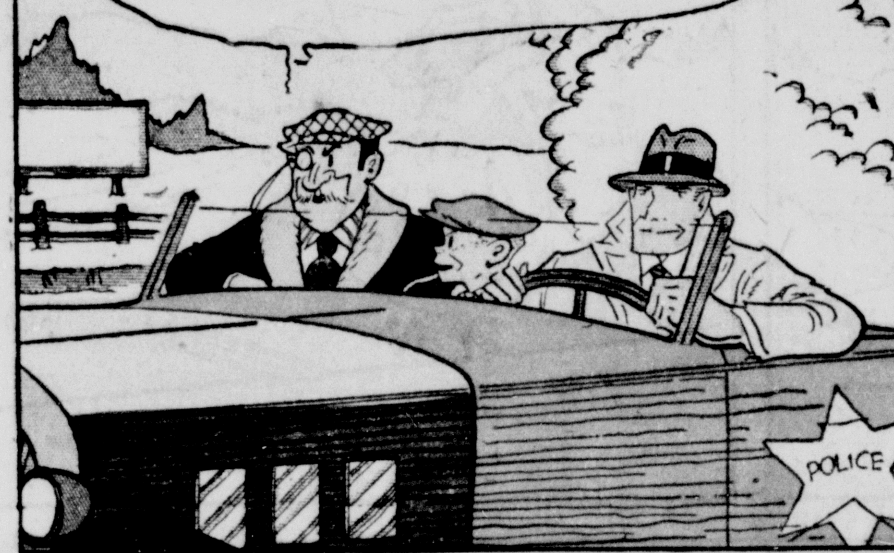

BUT LISTEN - SCOTTY, YOU WON'T NEED THAT ARSENAL. WHY NOT LEAVE YOUR GUNS HERE?

NOT A CHANCE, TRACY. OLD CHAP! WHERE I GO - MY GUNS GO.

REMAND ME TO TELL YOU SOMETIME ABOUT HOW I SHOT AN ASSASSIN THROUGH THE HEART IN BUDAPEST WITH A TINY GUN I HAD CONCEALED UP MY SLEEVE.

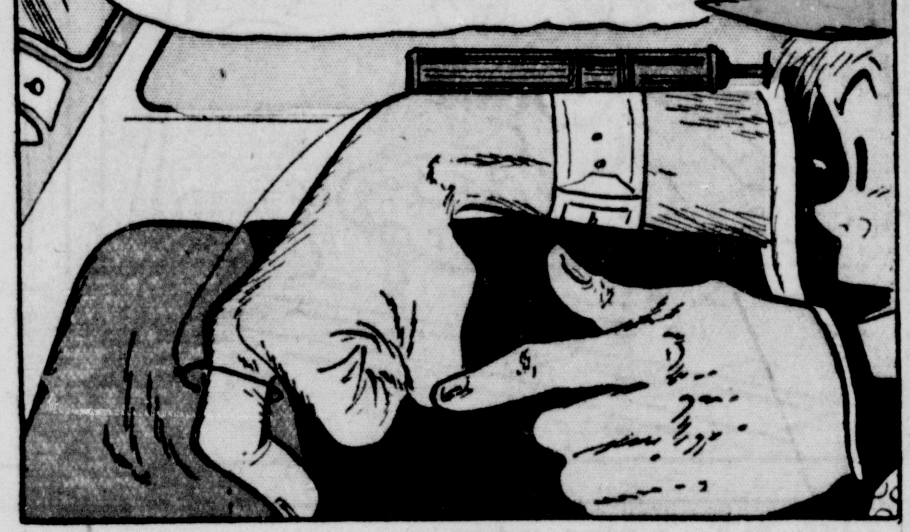

WATCH ME GET THAT CROW!

JEEMINEE! YOU GOT 'IM ALL RIGHT, SCOTTY! BUT WHERE'S THE GUN?

IT'S A LITTLE PERFECTION OF MY OWN. A SMALL SINGLE SHOT WEAPON STRAPPED TO MY WRIST WITH A WIRE RUNNING TO MY MIDDLE FINGER. PULLING THE FINGER DOWN FIRES THE GUN!

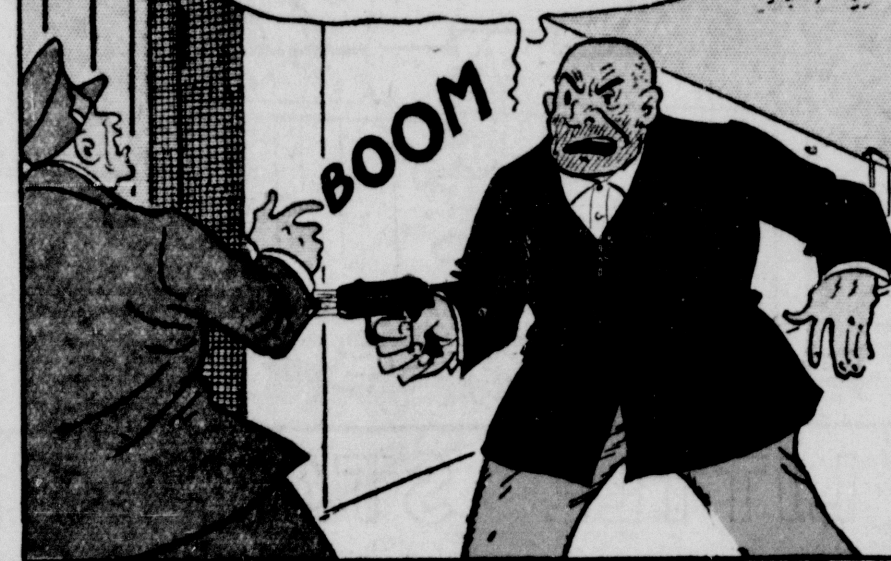

WELL - HERE WE ARE AT THE PENITENTIARY GATES.

HEY, TRACY - LOOK! SOMETHING'S HAPPENING!

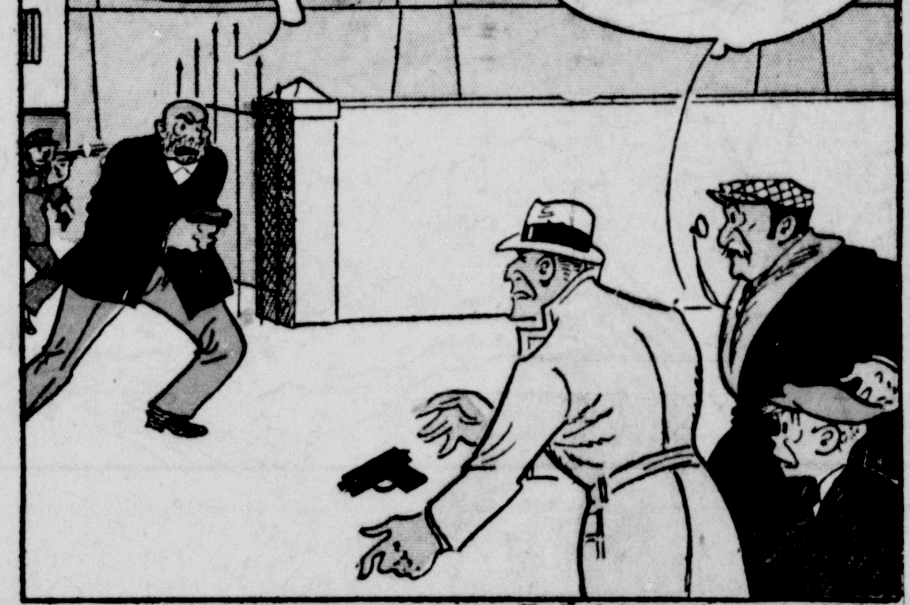

SO YOU T'GHT I HAD A WOODEN GUN LIKE THAT INDIANA GUY HAD, EH? WELL, TASTE THAT!

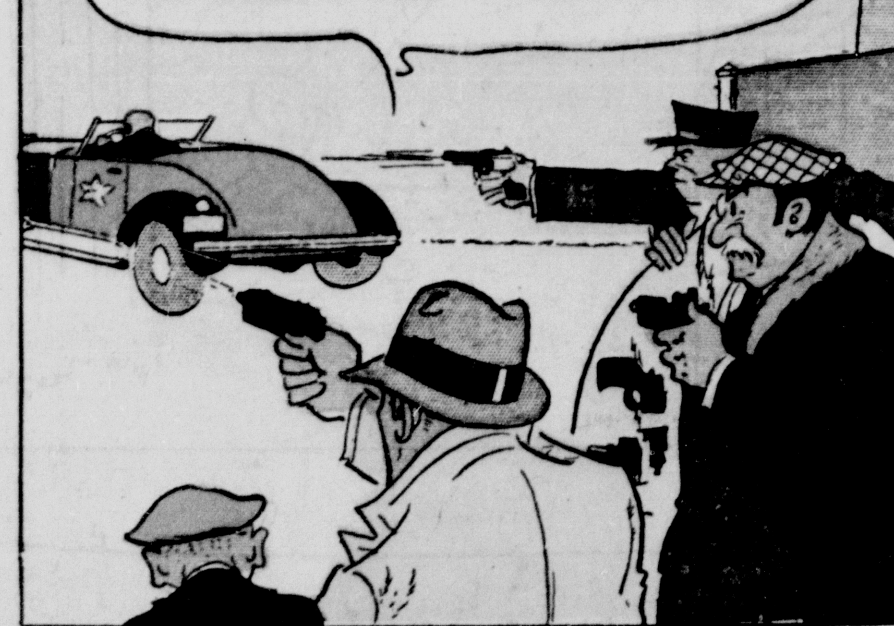

NO YOU DON'T! DROP THEM RODS, YOU TWO!

TRACY - IT'S.. IT'S STEVE!

BY GOLLY - IT IS STEVE! STEVE, THE TRAMP! HE'S SHOT HIS WAY OUT AND IS ESCAPING IN OUR CAR!

LET ME TAKE A POP AT THE BOUNDER WITH MY MAUSER. IT NEVER FAILS ME!

COME ON - WE'LL GIVE CHASE IN THE WARDEN'S CAR. IT'S NO USE SHOOTING.
